40 PERCENT RECOVERY

Employment up More Than 50 Percent of Its Depression Low, Reported

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP)—American business, aided by billions of dollars from Federal and State governments, appeared today to have pulled itself more than a third of the way out of the depression which began quite five years ago this month.

More than two years have passed since the absolute bottom of the depression was reached early in July, 1932. Today both official and private business figures showed an irregular upward course since that time, interrupted temporarily 18 months ago by the banking paralysis.

Responsible figures compiled by the Federal Reserve board showed today that industrial activity in the United States after reaching its peak of 125 per cent of the 1923-25 average in June, 1929, declined rather steadily to 58 per cent in July, 1932. The index rose slightly thereafter and fell to a "second bottom" of 59 per cent in March, 1933.

A responsible boom a year ago carried it to 100 per cent in July, 1933. After another setback, activity began to rise slowly early this year to the current 85 per cent level. At this level activity had regained 40 per cent of the entire decline from June, 1929 to July, 1932.

More billions of government money are to be poured out over the next few months in a final effort to clinch the recovery.

Compared with a 40 per cent recovery in industrial activity from its prosperity peak to depression low, the Bureau of Labor Statistics' index of employment has recovered more than 50 per cent of its depression loss although 10,000,000 persons still sit out of work.

The index of payrolls has recovered nearly 40 per cent of its depression drop from 112.9 to 37. Car loadings have recovered only 16 per cent of the depression drop, a better showing is made by commodity prices.

Commodity prices, as compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, have risen to 73 per cent of the 1926 average after dropping from 97 per cent to 67 per cent.

BAKING INDUSTRY UNDER BLUE EAGLE

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP)—The billion dollar baking industry today went under a blue eagle code which the National Recovery administration said would not increase the price of bread and might even lower it.

Karl Hauch, expert of the consumers' advisory board, was made a code authority member to see that unfair price structures are not established.

The NRA said that its minimum wage regulation of 40 cents an hour for bakers, with five cents less for southern workers, would have little effect on the bakers' payrolls. Workers in the industry always have been well paid, the NRA said.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—(UP)—William L. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today wired Governor Frank F. Merriam, of California a protest against use of armed troops in subduing striking longshoremen in San Francisco.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 9.—(UP)—Eight men were killed and an undetermined number injured today when a Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis freight train was derailed near Le Vergne, 20 miles south of Nashville. Identity of the victims was not immediately available.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 9.—(UP)—Jewelry, bonds and cash worth $75,000, representing loot obtained last week from the R. S. Bolling home here, was recovered today by Sheriff Albert Hauser and three deputies. Two men were arrested and held for questioning.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., July 9.—(UP)—Returning hot weather pressed a pall of dread over John D. Rockefeller's estate today as his 96th year in failing health.

He said he joined the American branch of the Stahlheim on the day he arrived in this country. Six months later, he said, he enlisted in the coast artillery and was told that his German citizenship made no difference.

"Did you ever take rifles home with you to drill with?" asked Rep. Dickstein.

"Nein, they were six-inch guns—cannon—big like this," answered the witness extending his arms.

Feiger denied the Stahlheim here took orders from the parent organization in Germany or from the Nazis.

MACCRACKEN IS VICTORIOUS IN COURT BATTLE

Wins Victory Against Ten Day Jail Sentence for Senate Contempt

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP)—W. William P. MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce, won a victory today against a 10-day jail sentence imposed by the senate when the district court of appeals held that the senate lacked jurisdiction to inflict such a punishment.

The senate imposed the sentence after MacCracken failed to produce certain documents in connection with the air mail investigation.

The court reversed the decision of the district supreme court dismissing MacCracken's petition for a writ of habeas corpus following his arrest by the senate.

The decision was split, three members of the court holding the senate was without jurisdiction to inflict such punishment on MacCracken while the remaining two members of the court dissented from the majority view.

The majority opinion read in part:

"Unless there is to be an intermingling of the legislative and judicial power to deal with contempt, thereby rendering it possible in all cases as a matter of legislative power summarily to try one thus accused without subjecting him to the statutory modes of trial provided for criminal offenses, protected by the limitations and safeguards of the constitution, then we must and do declare that the senate is without jurisdiction to inflict punishment upon the defendant."

The next step should be the department of justice so desire, will be a petition to the United States supreme court for a writ of certiorari. If the court grants the writ the case will be heard by the highest court.

There will be no appeal in the executive branch of the government.

NECESSITY SHOULD CHANGE CUSTOMS

(AN EDITORIAL)

In another column will be found a statement by the president of the Chamber of Commerce, defending the proposition of the proposed budget that has been urged by that body.

We desire to point out one or two things in his statement. He says, in the first place, an advertising and publicity tax was voted by the people, and raises the question as to whether the city council has a right not to vote that that may be assessed. Let's see!

There was a 12 cent tax voted in 1926, that is a permissive tax for advertising and music. If any part of that is mandatory upon the city council, the whole of it would be. In other words, they should vote to have a total 12 cent tax on the city and spent for music and for advertising.

No, we do not believe this by any means is true. It is permissive, if the city council thinks it is wise, and it is permissive for them, in the light of the changing circumstances, to vote none of it.

We have no doubt that this campaign of 1926, when this ordinance was put over, was put over largely by the Chamber of Commerce itself, as it has put many other propositions over, expensive to the citizens, and in many cases, impossible for the citizens.

It would be much finer now for the Chamber of Commerce to take cognizance of the present conditions, to recognize the bankruptcy and poverty of so many of our citizens, and cut out all luxuries.

It would be very fine, also, if the Chamber of Commerce could stand for a test right now by an election of the members of the city council, upon the issue that was embodied in the resolution forbidding money being turned over to private individuals.

But instead of this same group, composed primarily of the Chamber of Commerce men, induced two attorneys to come to the city council to urge against an election.

The second proposition that the president of the Chamber of Commerce makes is that the money budgeted for community advertising, would be spent by the city and not by the Chamber of Commerce. Very well.

We want to suggest that this budget is not being urged by the members of the city council. It is distinctly being urged by the Chamber of Commerce. And it is expected, and it has been the plan heretofore, that this money should be turned over to the Chamber of Commerce.

They work out the procedure. They direct the payment of the money. That is just the thing we have been emphasizing. It should not be done by a private agency, but by the city council.

Itself, and if it is left to the city council the money will not be spent.

It is not the business of the city council to spend money for such purposes. It is not organized for that purpose, and just at this time the city council knows that such purposes are luxuries. And, in fact, may we suggest that while the tentative city council budget, which was submitted to the city council, had some in for advertising purposes, it was less than one-fifth of the amount that the Chamber of Commerce is urging.

The president suggests that the Chamber of Commerce act in an advisory capacity. That is very fine in theory, but everyone who knows about the conditions that have existed in this city, knows that the council has been acting in the advisory capacity, whenever the Chamber of Commerce had its way. Because they have laid out the plans for the spending of the money, and have put them through the city council, as far as they could, though during the last few years, they were reduced by the city council to a minimum.

The worst part of this situation is that it puts the Chamber of Commerce into politics, interested in who the members of the city council are, to the end that they can get money from it. It has been too active always, as for instance at the time of the recall, practically conducting the campaign itself. While we were opposed ourselves to the recall, we cannot help now noting that the Chamber of Commerce was for the tax-spending members.

We know that the precedent has been established, and the custom is on for the Chamber of Commerce to do this thing. It is just that custom and that precedent to which we are calling attention, which is wrong, both in theory and in fact, because the taxpayer, who is footing the bills, has no way to reach the people who are spending the money.

We believe that with a properly paid executive staff, a Chamber of Commerce can be of great usefulness to a city. But its value is to the business interests, the realtors, commercial men, and the newspaper. We are the ones who should support it and not put it upon the general taxpayer.

Frequently we have said to the heads of the Chamber of Commerce, and we want to here repeat, that The Register would be glad to pay its part for the good that such an institution might do, properly conducted. And we believe that other people, who expect profit directly, should do it.

But there is no just ground to maintain that it should be supported otherwise, than there is to maintain any other group of civic men should be supported in any enterprise, which they may consider is valuable to the public.

We hope the city council tonight will vote the LeGaye resolution, which forbids this kind of expenditure.

NAZI LEADER WARNS WORLD GERMANY READY FOR WAR TO DEATH IF NATION INVADED

BERLIN, July 9.—(UP)—Nationalism swept Germany today in popular reaction to a speech by Rudolph Hess, Chancellor Adolf Hitler's deputy leader of the Nazi party, warning the world Germany is ready for war to the death if invaded.

The speech tended to divert attention from the bloodshed and excitement of last week and distract the public mind towards national reconstruction, politically and economically, which Hitler plans.

There was considerable discussion also of a speech by Cardinal Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, in which he called on Catholics to defend their freedom and resist "the spirit of the times."

A special moment of prayer was held in all churches of the Berlin diocese for the soul of Heinrich Klausener, head of the Catholic Action society, who was one of those killed in the Munich strife.

For diversion of public thought from the bloody events at home, Hess spoke of foreign affairs—the first such speech since the revolt.

Appealed to war veterans of other nations to work against war, and as far as possible invaders he said:

"The path is not open for a stroll through our lands. Even as the French defended themselves with every power, so would we do.

"The French front line soldier will understand us if we say,

BOARD OPENS HEARINGS IN PEACE MOVE

Conflicting Elements Are Summoned to Appear Before Federal Mediators

SITUATION IS TENSE

Martial Law Prevails on Waterfront as Troops Protect Truck Drivers

BULLETIN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—(United Press)—The president's mediation board, attempting to settle the Pacific Coast maritime strike, today suggested a basis for ending the labor warfare pending arbitration.

It's proposal, voiced informally by O. K. Cushing, board member during the opening session of the hearing on the present strike situation was:

That the strikers return to work without discrimination as to union membership and operate their own hiring halls pending arbitration.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—(UP)

Conflicting elements in San Francisco's labor warfare met around the conference table today with the city hoping a truce which would avoid a general strike would be evolved.

The president's mediation board opened hearings designed to bring before the public the exact background of the maritime strike which went into its third month today and which has been marked by bloody disorders.

Strikers, employers and representatives of the Central Labor council were to be heard.

The mediation board hopes that out of this frank discussion of the conflicting positions a common ground may be found.

Meanwhile the warehouse and waterfront areas of the city were quiet, a quiet enforced by 2,000 state militia patrolling those districts. Aside from two isolated instances where sentries orders to halt were not obeyed, there was perfect order.

Trucks operated by the Industrial association continued to haul goods from pier to the industrial association warehouses. Strikers' pickets lines were kept entirely out of the region through which the trucks passed.

Seven Known Dead

Riot-ridden Pacific Coast ports counted their dead at seven and injured at upward to 300 while the million-dollar-a-day strike entered its third month today.

Martial law prevailed along San Francisco's waterfront, storm center of the nationwide maritime workers' strike. National guardsmen maintained order after last week's bloody rioting.

San Francisco and Oakland's strongly organized Teamsters' union opened the wedge of a general strike in this region.

The teamsters threatened an embargo on delivery of supplies to and from the two cities' heavy industries unless the Maritime

STRATOSPHERE $886,235 FOR BALLOON READY HARBOR WORK FOR TAKE-OFF RECEIVED HERE

Huge Craft to Be Christened Today; Waits Only for Good Weather

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 9.—(UP)—With everything in readiness, personnel of the stratosphere flight today impatiently awaited favorable weather conditions for a takeoff, with every indication that the start could not be made before Thursday morning.

A possibility still existed, according to V. E. Jakl, meteorologist from the government weather bureau at Kansas City, that a high pressure area might move into the central United States tonight or tomorrow, making possible a take-off at dawn Wednesday.

Weather advises from every section of the country, from Canada, and from the islands of the Pacific ocean indicated, however, that no high pressure area could be hoped for before Wednesday, which would preclude a take-off before Thursday.

An altitude of 15 miles into the stratosphere never before reached is in the hands of the county officials have been busy for the last few days completing the final financial arrangements to obtain the actual money.

FIVE ESCAPE FROM JAIL IN ILLINOIS

WOODSTOCK, Ill., July 9.—Five prisoners fled along a circuitous trail today, after hacking and smashing their way out of an unguarded county jail. Seven other prisoners in the McHenry county lockup—unlocked at night because of a shortage in county funds—refused to join the delivery.

The five men, all of whom were awaiting trial for major crimes, included Charles Taylor, 33; John Enos, 31; Ellsworth Fowler, 39; Joseph Levonian, 40, and Henry Odenthal, 42.

Mr. Cordell Hull paid a mighty nice compliment to little Finland today, and incidentally did all he could to make the others feel ashamed, but Mr. Hull, you are just wasting your breath, those boys have been insulted by experts and it never fazed 'em.

Coldness yesterday found him too ill to enjoy it. Discussion of Rockefeller's health with outsiders was avoided. All visitors were barred on his birthday and again today. The financier's secretary, Ward Madison, informed Rev. John Merritt Hunter, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, that he was "not feeling well enough" to hear special services at the estate home.

Rockefeller was unable to pursue his custom of attending the church the last two Sundays. Since his arrival from his winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla., on Memorial day, he has not appeared on his own favorite nine-hole golf course.

Ordinarily he leaves this spring home for the estate near Tarrytown before his birthday. He took a short automobile ride Thursday for the first time in days. Immediately afterward he returned to bed. He has not been out since.

NAZI LEADER WARNS WORLD GERMANY READY FOR WAR TO DEATH IF NATION INVaded

'Just dare attack us, dare to try marching into the new Germany, and you will find its spirit.'

"But we do not believe anyone wants to disturb Germany, and therewith Europe's peace. Especially we do not believe it of the French, who learned that the last war brought sorrow for all the world."

Spark Needed

"Today, close to the 20th anniversary of the outbreak of the world war, an insignificant incident such as that at Sarajevo—a pistol in the hands of an idiot—might suffice to set armies of millions marching again against the will of the people."

"I tell Germans they are lucky to be ruled by war veterans. They have built up a new state in the spirit of the front."

Cardinal Faulhaber told his congregation that sacrifices were required in opposing the spirit of the times and in proclaiming the cross.

Chancellor Hitler spent the week end at his mountain lodge near Berchtesgaden, in Bavaria.

There were no major political developments. Hitler was expected back today. And a government declaration was expected during the next few days. The cabinet was expected to hold one final meeting before its members begin vacations.

Christening Today

The final formality incident to preparations for the ascent was scheduled for 5:30 p. m. today, when Mrs. Tom Berry, wife of the governor of South Dakota, will christen the craft.

Officials of the National Geographic society, which with the United States army, is sponsoring the flight, announced the balloon would be named "The Explorer."

It was decided liquid air would be used in the ceremony, although a bottle of champagne had been brought from Denver for the event.

After the christening, the crew will await weather reports before orders are given for inflation of the huge balloon, which has a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet, three times that of any free balloon ever made.

Start At Dawn

The ascent will start at dawn on the date chosen for the flight, which is expected to carry the craft eastward for a distance of approximately 300 miles.

They hope to bring back scientific data of greater importance than that obtained on any previous ascent into the stratosphere, including information on cosmic rays, and air pressure and conditions at various altitudes.

A ton of costly instruments has been installed in the metal gondola of the balloon for making scientific observations. These instruments were tested for a period of six hours Saturday during which Major Kepner and Captain Stevens and Capt. Orville Anderson, alternate pilot, sealed themselves within the gondola.

Attach Parachute

As an added safety factor, an 80-foot parachute has been attached to the metal gondola to bring it safely to earth if it should become detached from the balloon. The parachute was installed by Major E. L. Hoffman, of Wright Field, designer of parachutes that have landed airplanes without mishap in tests of their efficiency.

During the flight, the men within the gondola will use liquid air and oxygen to sustain life, and chemicals will remove the injurious gases exhaled from their lungs.

They prepared to take along emergency rations, but were doubtful whether they would have the opportunity to eat. The rations, they said, were for use in event of a landing in an isolated section.

FIRST LADY PAYS VISIT TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 9.—(UPI)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt started out today on a schedule so crammed with engagements that she decided she might have to remain in Chicago all week to obtain a "comprehensive idea" of the World's fair.

Originally her itinerary called for a one-day stopover here but radio, speaking and sightseeing engagements came in such a deluge that her companion, Miss Marion Bickerman, said they were considering a one week stay.

The first lady arose early in the 10-room residential suite at the Blackstone hotel and went to a press conference in the merchant mart. Later there was a radio broadcast from an exhibit at a Century of Progress with Mrs. Roosevelt's "pay check" going to charity.

The dead were Mrs. Olive Fowler, 30, Oakland; her son, Everett Fowler Jr., 6, and Reginald Johnson, 11, San Francisco.

Other occupants of the boat were Mrs. Jay Nichols, 58, Lathrop, and her son, Henry, 16. The boy rescued his mother.

Mrs. Fowler and the two boys were unconscious when rescuers reached them and they died while pulmoxors were being rushed to the scene.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR LAUNCH CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—(UPI)—Arrayed in brilliant plumes and flashing swords emblematic of the order, thousands of delegates today swarmed into San Francisco to celebrate the 39th triennial convention of the Knights Templar of America.

Representing practically every state in the union the knights created a colorful spectacle as they went about the city in their attractive costumes. Banners and pennants floated throughout the downtown streets. Hotel lobbies were jammed with visitors.

After a day of parading and period of solemn religious ceremonies at the civic center, the knights settled down today to the more serious phase of the conclave. Committee meetings and conferences, interspersed with informal parades and sightseeing tours occupied the attention of the organization today.

Chief Witness

Paul Scharrerberg, veteran California labor leader, was the chief witness before the labor board's hearing this morning. He was speaking principally for the seamen's unions.

He charged that since 1921 seamen's wages have been reduced almost 50 percent—from $90 a month to $50.

"Now they are only asking $75," he said.

Scharrerberg said that the present trouble had its inception in 1921 when the United States shipping board under the Harding administration altered contracts and reduced wages.

Questioned regarding alleged Communist leadership of the present strike Scharrerberg said:

"We admit there have been some Reds in the unions and we have attempted to take care of them, but there are quite a number of Reds among the shipowners—just as unreasonable and arrogant as our own Reds."

"Instead of the new deal, they insist on the raw deal."

"Shipowners can organize to grind the seamen in the dust and to keep wages as low as possible but now we are told they cannot be compelled to deal with the just demands of the unions."

"This strike can be settled in 24 hours if shipowners recognize the new deal and get away from the raw deal."

Obnoxious System

Scharrerberg termed the present system of hiring halls for longshoremen "obnoxious."

"The league of nations," he said, "has drafted treaties to outlaw it which have been ratified by nearly all of the maritime nations."

While the hearing was going on there was comparative quiet on the waterfront where state militia was on guard. The militia posted orders forbidding parking of automobiles on the waterfront and set a speed limit of from 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Industrial association officers reported that 10 ships cleared from San Francisco and five arrived at the port over the week end.

Two other passengers, Milton Vallens of Los Angeles and Buck Traub, Los Angeles, also were injured. Traub suffering a fractured leg.

A considerable increase in ship movements.

The mediation board's hearing adjourned after two hours to permit union men to attend the funeral of two strikers killed in Thursday's rioting.

The funeral was attended by several thousand strikers and sympathizers who gathered at the Longshoremen's union headquarters where the bodies lay in state. Pickets stood guard over a 12-foot square on the sidewalk in front of the building, covered with flowers, which marked the spot where one of the men was killed.

RELIEF GROUPS WORKING TOGETHER

Presided over by Winslow Carlton of Los Angeles and G. L. Diehl, Los Angeles, the Orange County Unemployed Exchange and the Unemployed Cooperative association held a joint meeting Friday at Garden Grove for the purpose of forming classes to meet twice a week for five weeks.

Mrs. Olive Butler of the Orange County Unemployed Exchange attended the use of the exchange warehouse for another joint meeting of the two organizations for the purpose of apportioning the 110 key positions recently allotted by the county SERA board, between the two groups.

Mrs. Butler said that the two relief organizations, because of the joint gatherings, are now working in cooperation with each other for the betterment of all concerned.

this indispensable sum. This emergency compels me to plead with you for a donation to be used exclusively for expenses directly connected with this Federal Court action. Your past generous support of this cause gives me hope that you will come to our immediate financial assistance. No contribution can be too large or too small, considering the task at hand of mass unemployment. Won't you please help us overcome this most unhappy situation? May I hope for an early and favorable reply to this very urgent appeal?

Please accept in advance my warmest personal regards, best fraternal greetings and heartfelt thankful appreciation for any consideration shown this communication.

Sincerely,

TOM MOONEY, 31821.

The Editor:

I see in your paper of the 6th inst. that the poor Chamber of Commerce wants only $4250 of the taxpayers' money. Also in reading your paper you do not agree with the proposition. Why not?

Haven't they said if they could get it, the glass factory would come here after we, (the people), built up a foreign trade for it? Of course they did not tell the public that they would sell glass to the foreign trade cheaper than they would to the domestic trade. (Which they have always done).

The United Liquor store, which until recently was located on North Broadway, has closed up and moved the stock and fixtures away. The store opened for business immediately upon repeal of prohibition and was operated by local bottling and soft drink interests.

YOUTH KILLED IN ATTEMPT AT THEFT

FRESNO, Cal., July 9.—(UP)—Fifteen-year-old Allen Meek was dead today, the victim of what police said was an attempt to take an automobile. The youth, a fugitive from the Fresno detention home, was shot and wounded by either C. A. Webb Jr. or his brother, Joseph Webb, when he allegedly attempted to take an automobile from the driveway of the Webb home.

The youth died at the county hospital, where his mother, Mrs. Edith Meek, 35, was treated for self-administered poison.

Grief over another son's conviction on burglary charges, and her husband's unemployment led her to attempt to take her life, her daughters said.

The arrests were made as company officials smuggled into the 5700-acre farm approximately 30 workers to till fields neglected since June 25 when workers walked out in protest against wage cuts and discharge of temporary employees.

In front of the farm 300 pickets marched up and down, shouting "to hell with the cops—they can't keep us from picketing." Women in overalls marched side by side with their men folk, jeering at county officers and deputies.

The pickets, singled out by officers, were herded into an abandoned ice box on the farm. An ambulance, summoned from Bridgeton, carried them to jail where they were held on charges of disorderly conduct and inciting to riot.

Bodies of Robert Watkins, Homer Beasley and Bill Gann were found in a lonely spot in the hills in this section and Riley was held in connection with the crime.

Prison officials said they intercepted a note yesterday in which Riley requested a fellow prisoner to hang George Baker, material witness in the case, and write a note under Riley's signature purporting to confess the triple slaying.

NINE PICKETS ARE ARRESTED IN NEW JERSEY

BRIDGETON, N. J., July 9.—(UP)—Nine pickets were arrested today as county officers sought to forestall violence at the Seabrook produce farm by wounding out the leaders of a singing marching group of strikers.

The arrests were made as company officials smuggled into the 5700-acre farm approximately 30 workers to till fields neglected since June 25 when workers walked out in protest against wage cuts and discharge of temporary employees.

In front of the farm 300 pickets marched up and down, shouting "to hell with the cops—they can't keep us from picketing."

Women in overalls marched side by side with their men folk, jeering at county officers and deputies.

The possibility arose that the inability of Britain and France to persuade Italy to relinquish the two disputed warships might block progress of the Anglo-American naval conference now in progress in London. It was said authoritatively that the United States would not back the opposition of France and England to the Italian ships.

The speaker will discuss his experiences in Washington and other matters of interest to the construction industry, the announcement said.

Charles B. Fallert, Orange county manager of the National Reemployment Service, will be an honored guest of the Exchange, and will answer questions regarding the re-employment service as relating to private and public construction jobs.

Important business to be transacted includes action on the relationship of the SERA program to construction jobs, it was stated.

The program will be in charge of the metal workers and hardware dealer members. John Knox will officiate during the program, while President C. M. Gilbert will preside during the business session.

CANDIDATE KILLED

WOODLAND, Calif., July 9.—(UP)—Harold M. Ball, 32, of Winters, candidate for district attorney of Yolo county, was killed last night when his automobile left the highway near here and overturned. William Poppe, a passenger, said Ball lost control of the car while passing another machine. Poppe was slightly injured.

MASS BRAKE CABLE PROVES STRENGTH

Money, Tobacco And Candy Stolen

Tobacco, candy and small change were the principal loot of thieves who broke into the Los Alamitos service station owned by A. R. Gillis Saturday night.

Specifications call for use in the braking system of a cable which would carry a load of one and a half tons.

To test this, one end of the brake cable was securely locked to a special beam-type sling, the other end attached to the hook of a chain hoist and a Nash Big Six coupe was lifted clear of the ground.

Measurements showed no stretching had occurred in the cable strands and that the tensile limit of the cable had scarcely been approached.

SECURITIES—
The foundations of the old ICC building are to be strengthened before the new securities commissioners move in.

Everyone agrees it would be dangerous to permit such strong personalities to assemble without extra strong foundations. They would shake an ordinary building down in a week.

GERMANY.

New Yorkers in close touch with German doubt that Hitler's rigorous suppression of the Roehm rebellion will bring any more than a full internal hostilities.

They get the dope that Goering is now the real boss even though he still pays lip service to Hitler. This is exactly what the Junkers and industrialists wanted and they got it quicker and with less trouble than they expected.

Financial experts rate it significant that Goering did not move in Berlin for seven hours after the arrest of Roehm and Heines in Munich. Why? To be sure Hitler had come out right side up. If Roehm had turned the tables on him Goering would have changed his tactics to fit but the end result would have been the same.

Goebbels' star has suddenly set. He strung with Hitler against his radical friends to save his own hide—which eliminates him from the leadership contest. It's understood he'll be lucky if that's the most that happens to him.

Note that Hjalmar Schacht of the Reichsbank is lying low. Insiders will give you odds that he eventually turns up on the winning side.

NOMINAL

The radicals have lost their leaders and are temporarily impotent but they won't take kindly to Goering's iron-fisted dictation and there are too many of them to be permanently ignored. The Junkers may keep the upper hand for a while by sheer terrorism but keen observers predict that an eventual explosion on a much bigger scale is inevitable. Hitler is now committed to the Junkers' game and will remain in nominal power as long as he continues to play it—but not longer.

OIL

New York gets a laugh out of the government's latest effort to get rid of the "hot oil" problem. Everything looked rosy for a settlement whereby the East Texas independents were to lay off extra-legal production in return for having the large companies provide a ready market for their products. In fact this solution was officially announced but it didn't come off and here's why.

The government thought it had a system to make sure the independents would keep their end of the bargain. It was provided that they should only be paid three-fourths of the price of their products—the remaining fourth being withheld until full compliance was proved.

This ingenious device didn't faze the hot oil lads a bit. They simply jacked the price of spot gas from three cents to four. That way the 75 per cent they would collect immediately equalled 100 per cent of the old price. Then the big companies which had agreed to purchase balked at the rise and the deal was off.

Experts say the new federal tax on oil will probably do more to curb the bootlegging menace than anything else yet tried. Severe penalties for false tax returns sort of give the boys pause. The hot oil output is already 20 per cent below two weeks ago. But New Yorkers who know East Texas say the operators will soon find a new way to give Mr. Ickes headaches.

REVIVAL

New York bankers get word that Senator Morgenstern's private brain trust will make a detailed examination of the Federal Monetary Authority proposal introduced at the last Congress and submit recommendations. This aspect of their research hasn't been publicized but it may turn out to be their most important job.

Insiders expect the Monetary Authority to be revived with a bang at the next session of Congress as a feature of Mr. Roosevelt's permanent program.

BLOCKED

The well laid plans of nine New York Clearing House banks to pay their pro rata share of the Harriman Bank losses and thus escape further liability has come a cropper. The Harriman Bank Depositors' Protective Committee objects to the settlement on the ground that Clearing House officers made the pledge should not be released from further claims because of the partial payment. That blocks any hope of getting 90 per cent depositor approval as required by the plan and dumps the whole mess back in the government's lap.

It looks as if the Clearing House banks may have to stick together in spite of themselves.

PLEASED

The makeup of the new federal commission gives the aviation industry its first pleasant surprise in months. Insiders say the boys had candidates of their own but never figured they'd get anywhere. They were ready to be grateful just to escape such "radicals" as General Billy Mitchell and Clarence Chamberlin. Now it turns out that four of the five members were on the industry's private list. You can imagine the glee.

The designation of Clark Howell—publisher of the Atlanta Constitution—as chairman isn't as strange as it seems. He's favorably remembered for his work on the Coolidge-Smith railroad board. And he's had an unpaid debit on the administration for campaign services rendered.

NOTES

When Senator Borah said in his speech over the NBC radio chain that he would report again on his bureaucracy issue in mid-October, if he could get radio time, the Columbia chain representative here (Harry Butcher) went to him and promised him the time. It was arranged for Borah to speak on a national network on or about October 15.

Plans mean nothing to Mr. Roosevelt. His itinerary provided definitely that he would not go ashore in Haiti, but, when he got there, he decided he wanted to go ashore and did.

One of the varsity brain trustees

walked into the treasury the other day and approached the policeman at the door, asking: "Where is the freshman team?" The policeman did not request any further identification, but responded at once: "Room 306." That is where Mr. Morgenstern's new freshman brain trust hangs out.

CHOICES—

Everyone concluded that it was because the White House had failed to notify Mr. Pecora that he was not to be chairman. That is not exactly correct. What happened on the inside was this:

President Roosevelt followed the recommendations of his liberal advisers and picked three liberals first for the commission—Landis, Mathews and Healy. Landis was to be chairman.

Scouting around for two more,

Mr. Roosevelt's eye struck Pecora. Mr. Pecora was asked if he would take the chairmanship of the commission. He said he would for one year only. That was satisfactory to Landis, who understood that the chairmanship would rotate every year and that he probably would be the next chairman after Pecora.

But then Mr. Roosevelt noted his commission had four liberals and no one from Wall Street and probably no one who ever owned a security. To even matters up, he made Kennedy the fifth member, representing Wall Street. The liberals thought that was even-four for them and one for Wall street.

Some one suggested Wall street might find out that one was not half of five, so, for the sake of appearances, it was agreed that Mr. Kennedy should be the chairman. It looked better. That is, it did to everyone save Mr. Pecora, who had not been consulted.

CHIP—

When Mr. Pecora heard about it, he intimated to a friendly newspaper that he might not show up to be sworn with the others. That news was flashed around town and the liberal inner circle started circumscribing itself trying to locate and placate Mr. Pecora. The official swearing was delayed three hours while Mr. Pecora was being patted on the back and urged to be quiet.

Mr. Landis appointed himself peacemaker. He put Kennedy in one room and Pecora in another.

Mr. Pecora, who had been consulted, had spent a long time digging up the dirt on Wall street, that among the dark nuggets he had panned was the same Mr. Kennedy, and he's been doggedly if he would let such a man be his boss. That was a hard one to answer. Mr. Landis spent some time at it before he finally got Messrs. Kennedy and Pecora on speaking terms.

Immediately after the election of Kennedy by the commission, however, Mr. Pecora went off to New York, explaining he had to settle up a little private business. Up to the time this was written, Mr. Pecora was still in New York. He did not attend the last half dozen conferences or meetings of the commission.

Mr. Pecora will come back all right, eventually, but it is clear that he is going to serve out his year with a chip on his shoulder.

NEW BOSS

Kennedy is really a find for the chairmanship from a publicity standpoint. He is good-natured, makes friends easily and is certain to become an outstanding Washington personality. Already all the newsmen who have come in contact with him are singing his praises. He speaks their language.

There was one reporter who insisted on asking embarrassing questions at several press conferences. When the reporter spoke up again at the last conference, Kennedy broke in and said: "Say, don't you ever go away on a vacation or something?"

It saved Kennedy from answering the questions.

OIL

A few days ago, Mr. Ickes announced he had decided to "let" the Justice department go ahead with the prosecution of that oil code test case.

The fact is that Mr. Ickes' interest in oil has tried in many devious ways to get the Justice department to prosecute the case. The Justice department has steadily declined. The inner situation between the two departments became a bitter issue.

Mr. Ickes' use of the word "let" clearly indicates that he has discovered that oil may be used as well as machinery.

SIDE LIGHTS

American bond issues totaling more than three billion dollars are selling above par—an all-time record... That kind of demand should make new financing simple... Most of the recent price cuts in steel were on products used in the motor industry.... The consumers won that argument.... The informants believe the principle of the Railroad Pension Act will be applied to other industries as part of the Roosevelt social program.

They've been on the defensive since the Akron disaster but now they're talking of selling the Navy the idea of building two more big zeppes. Is that optimism?

The designation of Clark Howell—publisher of the Atlanta Constitution—as chairman isn't as strange as it seems. He's favorably remembered for his work on the Coolidge-Smith railroad board. And he's had an unpaid debit on the administration for campaign services rendered.

covered that oil may be used as well as machinery.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
You have it right from your Uncle Charlie Harvey that his fighter, Steve Hamis, will fight Max Baer for the heavyweight crown in September or October. Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world chess champ, will give Jose Capablanca a shot at his crown. If Buenos Aires promoters will guarantee him 10,000 berries and not coffee berries, either. Rabbit Maranville now asserts he'll be back with the Braves August 1 . . . and a month ago it was July 1 . . . Guy Bush says the Pirates are the best fast ball hitters in the National league . . . and that should be a hunch to throw those Bucs nothing but slow babies . . . Purdie lost only four games on the gridiron in the last five years. Mickey Cochrane is getting the reputation as the best dressed guy in the American League . . . his color combinations are enough to make the Tigers see red and go out there and smack that pill. The Pittsburgh Pirates, pro grid outfit, have George Kavel, great Carnegie Tech back, just about signed up.

SHARKEY NOW SILENT

Jack Sharkey, once the loquacious Lithuanian, was anything but talkative in the skinning after Max Baer and Primo Carnera. In fact, he might have been referred to as the "Forgotten Man of Boxing."

He gave out no interviews, spoke little; in fact, he was just around. A few days before the fight he did, however, open up a little to this writer, but only after some pressuring, a most unusual thing for Sharkey.

He was around, but something seemed to prey on his mind. He missed the highlight that was his not so long ago. He was going through the stage unknown to lesser mortals when the hero of yesterday becomes the normal man of tomorrow.

Yet, Jack Sharkey's opinion on a championship event must have been worth while having. No better man could be qualified to speak about championship matches, especially one in which Carnera, the man who started Jack's downward trend toward oblivion, figured.

HATE STILL SMOLDS

Sharkey was an exceptional

fighter, an in-and-outter in the parlance of the ring. Jack Dempsey deprived him of his first chance to win the coveted diamond of pugilism, yet fortune favored him so that, despite that terrific setback, he was to have another opportunity at the crown and that time he emerged victorious.

Deep down, buried somewhere, where not even his intimates are permitted to peep, Sharkey blames Dempsey for the unpopularity that was his when he held the championship. He bitterly recalls that night at the Polo Grounds when he was having it all his own way until Dempsey fouled him and was allowed to get away with it. He showed the resentment he felt, and which he has never forgotten, to this writer the evening of the Baer-Carnera fight.

SHARKEY REMEMBERED

It was outside Mike Jacobs' ticket office in the heart of the White Light district. Dempsey met Sharkey face to face on the street. His greeting was the usual Dempsey type of welcome.

But to this writer it appeared as if Sharkey's response was somewhat cold; his smile looked forced. And then Dempsey jokingly exclaimed, "Do you remember this, Jack?"

And with both hands in a simultaneous motion he let two imaginary blows go, one well below the belt and the other on the chin. That was the famous double blow which started so much controversy after their fight. The victory won Dempsey a return match with Gene Tunney, which, incidentally, drew the richest resin receipts on record, $2,658,660. No, Jack Sharkey had not forgotten.

For a moment this writer observed a queer and bitter look in Sharkey's eyes. It passed almost as quickly as it came. He smiled then and with a wave of the hand walked away.

Both Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey have left their pugilistic careers far behind them, but it would have been interesting if by some miracle they could have been transplanted to a ring at that particular instant and allowed to go to it. Dempsey would have had his hands full with the Sharkey of that moment.

PRODIGAL GOLFER TURNS HERO

Driven From Britain, Cotton Restores Its Prestige

OWN COUNTRYMEN HISSED HIM

LONDON, July 9.—Virtually driven from England two years ago, handsome Henry Cotton came back to return the Open golf championship to his native land for the first time in 11 years and restore much of Britain's lost prestige with the two finest rounds ever recorded in major competition.

Cotton was carried from the St. George's course at Sandwich the other day, after tying Gene Sarazen's all-time major championship record of 283 for 72 holes, despite the fact that his 79 of the final afternoon was 7 above par.

Cotton, 27 now, and always a young man who spoke his mind, was hissed in the same tourney a year ago.

After establishing himself as Old Albion's foremost player in acquiring the British professional championship in 1932, Cotton left England for Belgium early last year, partly because he was dissatisfied with the status of professionals in Britain and partly because golf spectators in England were treating him badly.

It was in the pro championship that the dapper Cotton adopted the American plan of ignoring the opponent and concentrating on par.

Upon sailing for his native land after making the American winter tour of '28 and '29, Cotton, then just a promising youngster, told why, in his opinion, professionals of the United States excelled their British brothers.

"Fewer strokes on and about the green, keener competition and friendly criticism among the players," he explained. "British players rely on two puts to hole out, figuring any place on the green is good enough for the pitch. Americans think otherwise. They pitch for the cup every time and therefore save many strokes."

"The keen competition helps in bringing out the skill of a player. And third factor is the manner in which most pros offer friendly criticism when they believe something is wrong."

A dispute Cotton had with the British Professional Golfers' association in 1931 may have accounted

CLIMBING RED SOX FULFILL PROPHECIES

NEW YORK, July 9.—(UP)—Connie Mack, who can make predictions this year when his own club is in seventh place, warned the rest of the league some weeks back that the Boston Red Sox were very much in the race.

Boston was in sixth place at the time. Now the Red Sox are third, close herding the leaders a scant half-dozen games behind the Yankees and moving along at a .600 clip.

Yesterday the Bostonians won their last two games of the series with Philadelphia, making it two straight series having beaten the Yankees last week. They won four out of five against the Athletics and two out of three against the Yanks.

A group of ex-Yankees is helping to make things hum in the Hub. Gordon Rhodes is clicking again, and Bill Werber and Lary, both turned out of New York, are picking up hits regularly. The fact that "Lefty" Grove has won only four games this year is all that keeps Boston from being a half dozen games higher—which would be on top.

ALL-STAR MANAGERS IN HUDDLE

PERFECT CLUBS? WELL, NOT BAD, IN ALL-STAR GAME

BUSY WEEK ON SCHEDULE FOR NIGHT LEAGUES

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 9.—(UP)—Lobs and volleys from Wimbleton.

The greatest collection of American and National league players of 1934 will fight it out tomorrow at the Polo Grounds, New York, for baseball supremacy of the majors.

Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington Senators, will pilot the American entry, and Bill Terry, boss of the Giants, will manage the boys of the older loop. The picture above is the personnel of the two teams. Other players in the American squad are Al Simmons and Earl Averill, cutters; Bill Dickey and Rick Ferrell, catchers; Monte Weaver, Tommy Bridges, Fred Marberry, Willis Hudlin and Earl Whitehill, pitchers, and Bill Knickerbocker, Jimmy Foxx, and Jimmy Dykes, utility infielders. Additional National leaguers are Joe Medwick and Paul Waner, outfielders; Al Lopez and Jimmy Wilson, catchers; Dizzy Dean, Lou Warneke, Van Mungo and Fred Frankhouse, pitchers, and "Pepper" Martin and Travis Jackson, infielders.

This will rate as one of the busiest weeks in the history of night baseball in Southern California.

Four inland clubs, which tied for the first-half championship of the American Night League, began a complicated playoff series tonight. The Orange County Night League starts the second-half of its split season tonight. Santa Ana city league teams press onward this week with two games scheduled Monday, Thursday and Friday. And tomorrow night marks the formal opening of the second-half of the National league.

American league managers decided on the following schedule to settle their first-half deadlock:

Monday—Pomona at Riverside, Calif. at San Bernardino.

Wednesday—San Bernardino at Pomona, Riverside at Colton.

Friday—Colton at Pomona, San Bernardino at Riverside.

The two teams losing the greatest number of games in the first round are automatically eliminated. The two remaining nines will play a two-out-of-three series next week, thus delaying until July 23 the start of the American division's "new season."

Pending a meeting of managers here Wednesday night, nothing will be done toward determining how Long Beach and Brea will decide the first-half championship of the Orange County circuit, according to President Bill Cole. Meanwhile, the teams plunge right into their second-half race.

Westland and Rodney Bliss, Omaha, who was runner-up at Memphis last year, are the leading pre-tournament favorites for the championship. Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City amateur, is accorded the best chances of being medalist.

"I have actually heard faint cheers or exclamations of delight when he missed a putt or fluffed an approach. There never was any sniffling at Walter Hagen when he burst into view in England attired like a fashion plate. Nor do I remember occasions when other players from abroad, who exhibited bad manners, cleared under the name of temperament, were hauled over the coals.

Cotton is unquestionably the leading professional of Great Britain, yet in at least two tournaments he had to beat a section of the field to aid the British team that played in the Ryder Cup matches at the Scioto Country club, Columbus, unless he could remain here as long as he chose after the matches.

The British ruled that all members of the team must return together.

Cotton's refusal to aid the British team caused a great deal of comment, much of it unfavorable to him.

During Cotton's big season of 1932, "when there was nothing else to talk about, galleries made facious remarks about his clothes, and his tendency to appear garbed less like a scarecrow than some of his rivals," said Trevor Wiggin.

LENGLEN POPULAR WITH FANS Wimbledon Officials Stop Play to Remove Daisy CLOWN PERRY QUILTS JESTING

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 9.—(UP)—Lobs and volleys from Wimbleton.

Suzanne Lenglen, inconspicuous as a lighthouse in green beret and canary yellow dress, besieged by autograph-seekers at every turn.... Lord Lonsdale sitting alone in the huge royal box smoking foot-long cigars and reading a newspaper throughout a tense match.... The umpire who, on spotting a daisy poking its innocent head through the holy turf of the center court, halted play until a linesman plucked and cast it aside.... Lester Stoeven's heart-rending "Ye-Oow!" when he muffed an easy shot.... And George Lott's "Oh, Doctor!" on similar occasions....

The surprising inefficiency of the ballboys who, in their peaked grey hats and tight trousers, resemble nothing so much as gnomes.... Wimbleton ballboys refuse to run, all their retrieving being accomplished at a dignified and leisurely walk.... the tiny press room, and the chaste identification on its door, "Room of Silence".... Brisk, blue-uniformed interpreters, whose range of language can be determined by the national flags embroidered on their coatsleeves.... the refusal of the box-office head to allow the exchange of the cheaper seats for higher-priced ones, even though blocks of the latter were available.... the reason for the refusal: "It is entirely too much bother"....

The stern glance of the officials and the murmur of disapproval from the stands when a competitor lingered too long at the umpires' chair while changing courts.... for at Wimbleton the rules call for continuous play with absolutely no rest.... Clilly Aussem's pink eyeshade which she removes at critical stages of her matches.... Helen Willis Moody attracting more attention in the press box than the players on the center court.... Mohammed Sleem, the mysterious Indian Davis-cupper who, despite his lack of ability, managed to give the best players a real run. It is hinted that Mohammed has a magnetic stare that puts his opponents into a trance....

The change in Fred Perry.... once the biggest clown of them all, he now plays with deadly seriousness.... and tennis has no prettier stroke than Perry's on the royal standard run up when the king and queen or any member of the House of Windsor enters the gates.... the laugh which always greeted Fujukawa's yell of "Peach! Too nice shot!" when an opponent passed him at the net....

GEORGE MORSE, BEACH PIONEER, ANSWERS CALL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 9.—George J. Morse, 80 years of age, probably one of the first residents of this part of Orange county, and believed to have been the original settler at Huntington Beach, died yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. De Fey. The funeral will be held from the Christian church in this city at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Morse leaves a widow and nine children, including Mrs. P. W. Elliott of this city, the only member of the family now residing in Huntington Beach.

After selling their home Mr. and Mrs. Morse moved from Huntington Beach, returning a few years later and residing here until two or three years ago when they went to Inglewood to make their home with their daughter in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse devoted much time to church work. They were among the organizers and first members of the Christian church here and were lifelong members and workers in the church.

EXHIBIT PAINTINGS BY LAGUNA ARTIST

LAGUNA BEACH, July 9.—Employment of an architect and consideration of preliminary plans and specifications for construction of additional school buildings are included in matters to come before the board of education members at a meeting to be held tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Park avenue school. It was announced today.

Inquiries revealed that the school trustees have practically agreed upon employing the firm of Allison and Allison, well known Los Angeles school architects for the new building project. It also was learned that under provisions of a new state law, dealing with the construction of school buildings, it will be necessary for the board to employ an engineer or competent superintendent of construction to supervise the building operations, including the checking of material that goes into the job as well as insuring the strict observance of safety guards required by the specifications.

Luncheon Club Meets
in Trellised Arbor
At Cozad Home

Friday's meeting of Golden State Luncheon club was a most enjoyable affair for members who were entertained in the home on Tustin avenue of Mrs. John P. Cozad.

While vacation pleasures have called many club members from the city, those remaining felt that the beauty of the surroundings as they chattered over their needlework or joined in bridge games, atoned for the joys of travel which they were missing.

For Mrs. Cozad received guests in her garden and it was there that they enjoyed the covered dish menu at the noon hour. The table was arranged in a vine-covered trellis near a big barbecue grill used in preparing some of the dishes. Nearby were beds of flaming dahlias and zinnias, with low growing petunias to scent the air with fragrance.

The next regular meeting of the Luncheon club will be on Friday, August 3 when members will meet with their prepared dishes for luncheon with Mrs. Jerome B. Stephenson, 507 South Flower street. In the meantime there will be a special quilting session on Thursday, July 19 when Mrs. Ruth Lhouman will entertain in her home on West Fifth street. This will be a covered dish luncheon also.

Club Spends Pleasant Day in This City

Members of the Jolly 16 club of Huntington Beach spent a pleasant day Thursday as guests in the home of Mrs. Iva Lanham, 3121-2 West Fourth street.

Flowers decked the rooms, providing a colorful setting for a noon day covered-dish luncheon. The game of 500 was played, with prizes going to Mrs. Kitty Skinner and Mrs. Alvina Atkinson, scoring first and second high. Mrs. Emilie Lewis was consoled.

Birthday gifts were presented Mrs. Laura Hudson and Mrs. Flossie Anderson.

Plans were made to have a theatre party next Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in Long Beach. The next regular meeting of the club will be held Thursday, August 2 in the home of Mrs. Kitty Skinner, Midway City.

Those present were Mesdames Kitty Skinner, Midway City; Mary Doyle and Iva Lanham, Santa Ana; Laura Hudson, Sadie Lewis, Neil Ballard, Long Beach; Clara Chamberlain, Alvina Atkinson, Huntington Beach; Emilie Lewis, Mary Irwind, Opa Trece, Blanche Edmundson, Oceanview; May Klippl, Flossie Anderson, Etta Lenwick, Costa Mesa.

THIS EVENING

face red when the big surprise came?

What the surprise was and how embarrassed this young lady was will be told in tonight's Goodrich Silverton playlet on KREG at 8:40. It will give much food for thought for wives—and husbands, program official stated.

These playlets are scheduled each Monday on KREG.

"Flowers that Bloom in the Late Summer" will be the main topic of Harry L. Bateson's "Garden School of the Air" broadcast from KREG tonight at 8:15. It was announced.

In addition to this topic, Bateson will discuss further the subject of the back-to-the-soil movement which he originated.

Bateson's daily mail is now representing practically every community in Orange county and comprises enthusiastic comments from listeners upon his broadcasts, in addition to requests for his free booklets on gardening. It was stated.

GOODRICH PLAYLET ON KREG TONIGHT

"Men always want to spend money on the most idiotic things," Ellen Davis said as she and her friend Lucile Graves were riding in Ellen's new car, but was her hour on KREG.

Judge Newcomb Condee of the Civil Court will face the C. B. S. microphone at 2 p. m. tomorrow with an address on the "Jurisdiction of the Fall to Provide" Court" during the civic broadcast from KREG at that time.

Charles Leirly, the "Melody Lane" tenor, will sing "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "Marcheta" and "Loch Lomond" during the feature program tonight on KREG, 10:15 to 11. "Melody Lane" is scheduled nightly at that time on the local station.

John Page will read verses he has been asked to repeat, or poems submitted by fans, tonight on his 6:45 to 7 poetry and organ quarter-hour on KREG.

"Dicotonico Vuio," by Talvo, a favorite song of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, will be sung by Rosa Ponselle in her concert with Andre Kostelanetz' orchestra and chorus over the Columbia network including KHJ from 5 to 5:30 this evening.

"My Wild Irish Rose," a favorite ballad by the late tenor and composer, Chauncey Olcott, will be the opening number at the Voices of Firestone Garden Concert to be presented over an NBC network including KFI at 7:30 tonight. The concert, starring Gladys Swarthout, also will feature William Daly's symphonic string orchestra and a vocal ensemble.

National recognition has come to Harrison Hollaway and the Blue Monday Jamboree, for beginning at 8 tonight, radio's first variety type of show will be sent to the entire Columbia Broadcasting System.

DON WILKIE TO RELATE CRIME STORY TONIGHT

The second in the series of highly interesting broadcasts by Captain Don Wilkie entitled "In the Crimelight" from KREG tonight at 7:30 will offer a weird story of a gangster's "moll" whose kiss meant death to those she favored.

All of Captain Wilkie's stories are based upon fact, not fiction, and in reality embody the facts of each particular case in practically every detail with the possible exception of names of the people involved.

Tonight's broadcast is the inside story of a "widow of seven weeds," taken from the files compiled by three generations of "law-enforcing Wilkies" and augmented by Chief Wilkie's personal records. Program officials stated that it is a fascinating, thrilling tale of a series of uncanny coincidences.

"In the Crimelight" series is broadcast from KREG exclusively each Monday and Friday.

USING THE NEEDY TO INCREASE POWER

We have written today discussing the idea of the method of some politicians of getting and keeping office. We do not blame men who are elected to office for appointing friends and supporters in their departments, rather than those who opposed them for election, providing these people are competent and providing the office is there and needs filling. Of course it should be filled by friends rather than opponents.

What we do object to is what we have described in the other writing. Further we desire to suggest that there are some phases of public life to which the plan of politicians, of trying to get voters to support the "organization," should never be used.

A particular phase of this is that of the welfare department of our county and of what has developed through the depression into a tremendous work for the unemployed and the needy.

If there ever were a place where training, broad views of humanity and the highest ideals of service should eliminate, entirely from the political program, anything in the nature of the kind of politics that we have been describing, it is in relation to the welfare department having to do with the unemployed and the needy.

And yet, to the utter shame of men in public position, and of influence, there has been as much or more politics in relation to this department of our public activity than to any other.

It is not confined to Orange county, but neither, by any means, is Orange county free from it. Discussing this phase of matters, the Los Angeles Evening Post last Saturday, made some very pertinent remarks. It said:

"It is too much to hope that the vast relief program can be kept out of politics. It is inevitable that officials anxious to succeed themselves or obtain higher offices, that political parties in power, and candidates will attempt to gain the ballots of those who obtain or need help in these emergencies.

"What the unemployed man and woman can do in this matter is to refuse to be either fooled or frightened.

"They can remember that every dollar now available for relief comes from all the people, not from any politician nor any political party.

"They can remember that when any official who has power over any fund attempts to furnish an alibi for failure, he has only indicted himself for incompetency.

"They can remember that, if any party attempts to take credit for furnishing food to the hungry, or work to the idle on public funds, it is claiming credit it does not deserve.

"No man or woman out of a job, no father of hungry children needs barter his citizenship for relief and help.

"This army of men and women, unfortunately too great, must not be herded to the polls on false pretenses.

"They should remember that what they get is not given, but disbursed on the theory that they will again become useful to society."

The Register is not ashamed of the position that it has constantly taken on this question. It has opposed the domination of the group in political control in this county from continuing and increasing their powers over the unemployed as a part of this "spoils" system.

It has done this because it has known from the experience through which we have passed, that the primary interest has not been the unemployed or the needy, but it has been the development of a political "machine."

When the unemployed were dependent upon private effort for what they received, we had to fight this group openly, because they said "no such need existed."

When they threw 3500 unemployed out on the street, and said they had no money, we proved that there was money, upwards of $300,000, unappropriated, that they could use. They still maintained that the "need was not serious."

When the federal government stepped into the breach, immediately the same ones who had discounted the needs, magnified them manyfold, so as to get large appropriations from the federal government, and we know the influences that were used on the unemployed and the manner in which the additions to the "machine" were made.

This was the reason for the enlargement of the committee. And we have been held up, in the work of the SERA, for weeks, because of the effort of this same political group to keep a strangle hold on that department of public work.

We have been told that three of this committee asked one of the applicants for a job some question as to whether he favored The Register or its publisher, or agreed with it, or something of that kind. This was one of the three questions asked this particular applicant.

It showed a positive determination on the part of this political group to carry on, on behalf of the same kind of politics which The Register has been fighting.

As long ago as the 13th of June, the publisher of The Register, expressing himself in a letter directed to Mr. R. C. Branson, who is at the head of this department in the state, wrote in relation to this very matter as follows:

"I am writing this in part to acquaint you with the facts concerning that matter, and to urge the appointment of someone entirely outside of politics, and probably outside of this county—some socially trained representative—who can take over this work, not because of being supported by political factions or factors, but because you and your advisors in the state know that he is well equipped, both by training and experience to handle the job."

This is the kind of politics in relation to the unemployed, that the publisher of The Register believes in, and The Register is endeavoring to further.

If it cannot get its ideals, it believes in those men who most nearly approach them. It certainly would protest against those who are utterly at variance with them and would destroy them.

THOSE WHO PROFIT SUPPORT THE SYSTEM

It has been an adage in politics, and a principle observed by certain kinds of politicians, that "to the victors belong the spoils." The enunciation of this doctrine is usually credited to Andrew Jackson.

The application of it has been one of the great curses of our nation. Political organizations are built primarily by patronage, and patronage consists of getting appointments for the deserving. It consists too often of the creation of unneeded jobs for the "faithful," and special favors, in the way of contracts for service or for goods, for the other friends who do not want or cannot get appointments.

This produces a certain kind of loyalty on the principle that the "ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib," and these people will support those who feed them, even if it is done from the treasury of the political division.

Folks are often surprised at the type of people whom they find supporting skulduggery in politics. But frequently if they knew the facts, and knew how the one who is defending this kind of thing is himself, or his family, the recipient of favors through appointments or business connections, or sales to the county or city, they would understand perfectly just why it is that such fine and outstanding people seem to be perfectly happy over a condition which seems to shock the other citizens.

Frankly, The Register doesn't believe in that kind of politics. It is happy to know that the politicians who do believe in it, and are working it, are opposed to The Register and for what it stands.

We hope that we will so conduct the paper that as long as these kinds of politicians have influence and power, they will be opposed to this paper. If it ever reaches the point that this paper favors the kind of politics that takes money out of the public treasury to pay political debts and to keep up a political organization, it will be evidence that the paper is unworthy of support by the citizens of the country.

The National Game

Oakland Tribune

The score does not indicate it was what we would call a good game, but Scotland beat England in their first international baseball contest, 24 to 8.

That the game is invading Great Britain in way to threaten the ancient reign of cricket is an assertion from a correspondent of the National Geographic Society, who recalls that time, 60 years ago, when Boston and Philadelphia teams sought to introduce it on English soil. The American visitors were courteously received, fourteen games were played, and the Britains went on playing cricket.

Some of this correspondent's comments and recollections should interest the American fan. Whichever Americans have settled, he says, baseball is played. Igor boys of Luzon are seen supported of their local teams. Entering the harbor of Pago Pago, Samoa, the first thing one sees through the palms along the shore is an immaculate baseball diamond. Puerto Rico and Hawaii have their enthusiastic fans. In Soviet Russia American Ambassador Bullitt has ordered bats and balls from this country, and two Embassy mines are ready to show Moscow how the game should be played.

Even the deliberate East has learned to steal bases. Girls' schools in China and Turkey have their teams. One writer describes a game he watched beside the Bosphorus—"Fatima at the Bat" on the diamond of Constantinople Women's College.

It is in Japan, however, that baseball has had its most amazing success. It was introduced by two American professors some sixty years ago. At first there was little interest in it. No admission could be charged and spectators had to be given free tea and cakes to keep them from leaving during the seventh inning.

For Suicide

The San Diego Union

In the course of its current tilt with radio's general staff, the New York Herald-Tribune quotes a comment which offers a sure device for commercial broadcasting's suicide, if it is religiously followed.

"As a matter of fact," the NBC's legal department advised, according to the newspaper, "almost any discussion (of the Tugwell bill) at this time is dangerous." Accordingly the broadcasters refused to permit manufacturers of a patented toothpaste preparation to attack the pure food and drug bill and prevented Consumers Research, the consumers' self defense organization, from advocating federal interference with the nostrum business on the ground that the material sounded like "hopping on the NRA."

Aside from the fact that the NRA or any other organization should be "hopped on" if any responsible group of citizens discovers ground for just criticism, the broadcasting company's lawyers here advise their client to destroy the public confidence which is the source of all its income.

The "do nothing, say nothing, be nothing" formula applies with double force to an enterprise devoted to arousing and holding public attention.

The Herald-Tribune holds that the threat of cancelling licenses has destroyed radio's independence. Whether this or a mistaken effort to please everyone produces the self-censorship, the result will be the same.

The radio, or for that matter, the newspapers, only can continue to exist and develop by serving the public interest particularly on controversial issues.

I am writing this in part to acquaint you with the facts concerning that matter, and to urge the appointment of someone entirely outside of politics, and probably outside of this county—some socially trained representative—who can take over this work, not because of being supported by political factions or factors, but because you and your advisors in the state know that he is well equipped, both by training and experience to handle the job."

This is the kind of politics in relation to the unemployed, that the publisher of The Register believes in, and The Register is endeavoring to further.

ADVENTURE PLUS SAFETY

They've caught the robin's lifting song
And one can listen all day long

The while it sings
Or flaps its wings

Before a gramophone.

But never would my heart be stirred
Unless I really heard the bird

Perform at ease

Among the trees,

Unaided and alone.

They've canned the growls of polar bears

Among their far Alaskan lairs

Where they reside

Beside the tide,

But I do not aspire

To hear their voices close at hand—

I'm not a coward, understand—

But brutes so queer

Across a long, long wire.

I'd rather hear

By wireless man shall shortly see

This wide world—practically free

Great snakes, great brutes,

Ply their pursuits,

And these would much divert me.

But being much averse to strife

And anxious to retain my life,

As wise men do,

I'm going to view

Such beasts as cannot hurt me.

American Business Increase Revealed In Reports

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY IS PRONOUNCED NEW NATIONAL LABOR ORGANIZES AS UNREST GROWS

Federal Reserve Board's Figures Substantiated By Unofficial Reports

40 PERCENT RECOVERY

Employment up More Than 50 Percent of Its Depression Low, Reported

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP) American business, aided by billions of dollars from Federal and State governments, appeared today to have pulled itself more than a third of the way out of the depression which began quietly five years ago this month.

More than two years have passed since the absolute bottom of the depression was reached early in July, 1932. Today both official and private business figures showed an irregular upward course since that time, interrupted temporarily 18 months ago by the banking paralysis.

Responsible figures compiled by the Federal Reserve board showed today that industrial activity in the United States after reaching its peak of 125 per cent of the 1923-25 average in June, 1929, declined rather steadily to 58 per cent in July, 1932. The index rose slightly thereafter and fell to a "second bottom" of 59 per cent in March, 1933.

A speculative boom a year ago carried it to 100 per cent in July, 1933. After another setback, activity began to rise slowly early this year the current 85 per cent level. At this level activity had regained 40 per cent of the entire decline from June, 1929, to July, 1932.

More billions of government money are to be poured out over the next few months in a final effort to clinch the recovery.

Compared with a 40 per cent recovery in industrial activity from its prosperity peak to depression low, the Bureau of Labor Statistics' index of employment has recovered more than 50 per cent of its depression loss although 10,000,000 persons are still out of work.

The index of payrolls has recovered nearly 40 per cent of its depression drop from 112.9 to 37. Current loadings have recovered only 16 per cent of the depression drop. A better showing is made by commodity prices.

Commodity prices, as compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, have risen to 73 per cent of the 1926 average after dropping from 97 per cent to 67 per cent.

BAKING INDUSTRY UNDER BLUE EAGLE

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP)

The billion dollar baking industry today went under a blue eagle code which the National Recovery administration said would not increase the price of bread and might even lower it.

Karl Hauch, expert of the consumers' advisory board, was made a code authority member to see that unfair price structures are not established.

The NRA said that its minimum wage regulation of 40 cents an hour for bakers, with five cents less for southern workers, would have little effect on the bakers' payrolls. Workers in the industry always have been well paid, the NRA said.

Coolness yesterday found him too ill to enjoy it. Discussion of Rockefeller's health with outsiders was avoided. All visitors were barred on his birthday and again today. The financier's secretary, Ward Madison, informed Rev. John Merritt Hunter, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, that he was "not feeling well enough to hear special services at the estate home."

Rockefeller was unable to pursue his custom of attending the church the last two Sundays. Since his arrival from his winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla., on Memorial day, he has not appeared on his own favorite nine-hole golf course.

Ordinarily he leaves this spring home for the estate near Tarrytown before his birthday. He took a short automobile ride Thursday for the first time in days. Immediately afterward he returned to bed. He has not been out since.

18 UNIONS IN SAN FRANCISCO VOTE WALKOUT

unions' strike is settled by Wednesday night.

Sympathy Strike

The overwhelming vote for a sympathy strike was taken despite warning from Michael J. Casey, district president, that the walkout would be an "outlaw" strike to the extent that laws of the International Union forbid such strikes and that financial support which would total $25,000 weekly in an authorized strike probably would be withheld by the Internationals.

His warning had no effect. "In 30 years," Casey commented, "I have never seen the men so wrought up as they are over this thing."

He referred to imposition of martial law along the San Francisco Embankment and the employment of non-union truck drivers to take cargo from steamer docks to warehouses maintained by the Industrial association.

Meantime, at least 18 of the city's 229 unions reportedly were ready to join a general strike if sufficient support is obtained.

Hopes of settlement of the strike of 22,000 coast longshoremen, seamen and allied crafts rested with President Roosevelt's board which opened public hearings in Federal court today.

Use Subpoena

By liberal use of subpoena, the board hoped to bring into the open real issues of the strike and to throw the powerful weight of public opinion behind the aggrieved workers, whether employers or workers.

The committee conferred Saturday with the joint marine strike committee of 50.

Police meantime took extra precaution against renewal of violence when funerals of two strikers slain in Thursday's sanguine disorders were held today.

Bodies of Howard Sperry, seaman and World War veteran, and George Coundourakis, cook, alleged by police to have been a New York communist, lay "in state" Sunday at headquarters of the International Longshoremen's association. Double funeral services were to be held today, followed by separate burials.

National guardsmen last night fired their first shot since coming on patrol duty Thursday.

A group of pickets approached too close to Pier 54 at the southern end of the Embarcadero. When they did not heed orders from a sentry to withdraw he fired two shots into the ground. The pickets withdrew.

Another sentry fired a shot at an automobile which failed to halt when ordered. But it was found the driver was deaf and in no way connected with the strike. He was released.

Chief Witness

Paul Scharenberg, veteran California labor leader, was the chief witness before the labor board's hearing this morning. He was speaking principally for the seamen's unions.

He charged that since 1921 seamen's wages have been reduced almost 50 percent—from $90 a month to $50.

"Now they are only asking $75," he said.

Scharenberg said that the present trouble had its inception in 1921 when the United States shipping board under the Harding administration altered contracts and reduced wages.

Questioned regarding alleged Communist leadership of the present strike Scharenberg said:

"We admit there have been some Reds in the unions and we have attempted to take care of them, but there are quite a number of Reds among the shipowners—just as unreasonable and arrogant as our own Reds."

"Instead of the new deal, they insist on the raw deal."

Shipowners can organize to grind the seamen in the dust and to keep wages as low as possible but now we are told they cannot be compelled to deal with the just demands of the unions."

"This strike can be settled in 24 hours if shipowners recognize the new deal and get away from the raw deal."

Obnoxious System

Scharenberg termed the present system of hiring halls for longshoremen "obnoxious."

"The league of nations," he said, "has drafted treaties to outlaw it which have been ratified by nearly all of the maritime nations."

While the hearing was going on there was comparative quiet on the waterfront where state militia was on guard. The militia posted orders forbidding parking of automobiles on the waterfront and set a speed limit of from 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Industrial association officers reported that 10 ships cleared from San Francisco and five arrived at the port over the week end.

NAZI LEADER WARNS WORLD GERMANY READY FOR WAR TO DEATH IF NATION INVADED

"Just dare attack us, dare to try marching into the new Germany, and you will find its spirit!"

"But we do not believe anyone wants to disturb Germany, and therewith Europe's peace. Especially we do not believe it of the French, who learned that the last war brought sorrow for all the world."

Cardinal Faulhaber told his congregation that sacrifices were required in opposing the spirit of the times and in proclaiming the cross.

Chancellor Hitler spent the week end at his mountain lodge near Berchtesgaden, in Bavaria.

There were no major political developments. Hitler was expected back today. And government declaration was expected during the next few days. The cabinet was expected to hold one final meeting before its members begin vacations.

STRATOSPHERE BALLOON READY FOR TAKE-OFF

A. W. Stevens, scientific observer, as they made ready for the ascent.

Christening Today

The final formality incident to preparations for the ascent was scheduled for 5:30 p. m. today, when Mrs. Tom Berry, wife of the governor of South Dakota, will christen the craft.

Officials of the National Geographic society, which, with the United States army, is sponsoring the flight, announced the balloon would be named "The Explorer."

It was decided liquid air would be used in the ceremony, although a bottle of champagne had been brought from Denver for the event.

After the christening, the crew will await weather reports before orders are given for inflation of the huge balloon, which has a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet, three times that of any free balloon ever made.

Start At Dawn

The ascent will start at dawn on the day chosen for the flight, which is expected to carry the craft eastward for a distance of approximately 900 miles.

They hope to bring back scientific data of greater importance than that obtained on any previous ascent into the stratosphere, including information on cosmic rays, air pressure and conditions at various altitudes.

A ton of costly instruments has been installed in the metal gondola of the balloon for making scientific observations. These instruments were tested for a period of six hours Saturday during which Major Kepner and Captain Stevens and Capt. Orville Anderson, alternate pilot, sealed themselves within the gondola.

Attach Parachute

As an added safety factor, an 80-foot parachute has been attached to the metal gondola to bring it safely to earth if it should become detached from the balloon. The parachute was installed by Major E. L. Hoffman, of Wright Field, designer of parachutes that have landed airplanes without mishap in tests of their efficiency.

During the flight, the men within the gondola will use liquid air and oxygen to sustain life, and chemicals will remove the injurious gases exhaled from their lungs.

They prepared to take along emergency rations, but were doubtful whether they would have the opportunity to eat. The rations, they said, were for use in event of a landing in an isolated section.

PRISONER BOOKED

Roy Fridley, 45, San Luis Obispo, was booked at the county jail Saturday by federal officers from Los Angeles.

Arrest Follows Sale Of Stolen Plumbing Fixtures

Admitting to deputy sheriffs that he stole some plumbing fixtures from a house on Darlington street, Buena Park on July 1 and sold them to a second hand store near his home, Arle Smith, 20, Buena Park, was booked at the county jail Saturday afternoon for investigation of burglary by Deputy sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and James Musick.

The alleged burglary was first detected when reports from second hand stores and junk yards were being studied by the officers. When questioned, Smith confessed the theft, it was reported.

The decision threatened to have a pronounced effect on all future attempts of the senate or house to punish witnesses who fail to carry out commands of investigating committees.

MacCracken was tried by the court for contempt because he refused to give the air mail committee copies of correspondence with his clients. He claimed that as a lawyer he could not produce the documents without permission from those he represented.

Eventually executives of all airplane companies which MacCracken represented consented to permit him to turn over the papers to the committee.

MacCracken also drew contempt charges because he allegedly permitted removal of some of the files which had been subpoenaed by the committee. In connection with removal and destruction of certain letters Col. Lewis H. Brittin was found guilty of contempt and served a 10-day jail term. Brittin's attorney urged him to follow MacCracken's course and appeal the case, but the former North-West Airways executive announced he had no money and would go to jail and "get it over with."

FIRST LADY PAYS VISIT TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 9.—(UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt started out today on a schedule so crowded with engagements that she decided she might have to remain in Chicago all week to obtain a "comprehensive idea" of the World's fair.

Originally her itinerary called for a one-day stopover here but, radio, speaking and sightseeing engagements came in such a deluge that her companion, Miss Marion Dickerman, said they were considering a one week stay.

The first lady arose early in the 10-room presidential suite at the Blackstone hotel and went to a press conference in the merchant mart. Later there was a radio broadcast from an exhibit at a Century of Progress with Mrs. Roosevelt's "pay check" going to charity.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR LAUNCH CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—(UP)—Arranged in brilliant plumes and flashing swords emblematic of the order, thousands of delegates today swarmed into San Francisco to celebrate the 38th triennial convention of the Knights Templar of America.

Representing practically every state in the union the knights created a colorful spectacle as they went about the city in their attractive costumes. Banners and pennants fluttered throughout the downtown streets. Hotel lobbies were jammed with visitors.

Another sentry fired a shot at an automobile which failed to halt when ordered. But it was found the driver was deaf and in no way connected with the strike. He was released.

After a day of parading and period of solemn religious ceremonies at the civic center, the knights settled down today to the more serious phase of the conclave. Committee meetings and conferences, interspersed with informal parades and sightseeing tours occupied the attention of the organization today.

SHOTS FIRED AT CHICKEN THIEVES

Two chicken thieves in the Huntington Beach district narrowly escaped gunshot wounds but were shot with 25 chickens last night from the ranch of H. V. Brewster, living on C street in Liberty Park on Huntington Beach boulevard, it was reported to sheriff's officers.

The two men were loading the hens into a car when discovered by Brewster, who fired at them as they sped away, it was reported by Deputy Sheriff Sam Snodgrass and Walter Duncan, of the farm detail, who investigated the theft. Tracks of the men and car were found later but a quick search of the neighborhood, after the sheriff's car was sent to the scene by police radio, failed to find the alleged thieves.

Obnoxious System

Scharenberg termed the present system of hiring halls for longshoremen "obnoxious."

"The league of nations," he said, "has drafted treaties to outlaw it which have been ratified by nearly all of the maritime nations."

a considerable increase in ship movements.

The mediation board's hearing adjourned after two hours to permit union men to attend the funeral of two strikers killed in Thursday's rioting.

The funeral was attended by several thousand strikers and sympathizers who gathered at the Longshoremen's union headquarters where the bodies lay in state. Pickets stood guard over a 12-foot square on the sidewalk in front of the building, covered with flowers, which marked the spot where one of the men was killed.

MOTHER AND TWO BOYS ARE DROWNED

LATHROP, Cal., July 9.—(UP)—A young mother and two boys were drowned and two other persons rescued late Sunday when a motorboat was swamped in a high tide and the five persons were thrown into the swirling waters of the San Joaquin river.

The dead were Mrs. Olive Fowler, 30, Oakland; her son, Everett Fowler Jr., 6, and Reginald Johnson, 11, San Francisco.

Other occupants of the boat were Mrs. Lucy Nichols, 58, Lathrop, and her son, Henry, 16. The boy rescued his mother.

Mrs. Fowler and the two boys were unconscious when rescuers reached them and they died while pulmoxers were being rushed to the scene.

Recovery Of Stolen Auto

Another indication of the value of police radio service was given in Orange county early yesterday morning, when a car stolen in Balboa was recovered in Santa Ana and the thief arrested less than 40 minutes after the first report was broadcast over KGKX, the police radio station.

C. A. Anderson, 146 South Yale street, Fullerton, reported to Newport Beach officers that his car had been stolen from a Balboa parking lot at 1 a. m. The message was broadcast and officers of the county took up the search.

At 1:32 a. m., police were notified by Herbert Krahlberg, 411 East Twentieth street, that a drunken driver was in front of his home, having trouble with a car. Police car No. 3 was dispatched by radio and Officers E. B. Sherwood and William Heard found Charles O. Hovey, 27, Los Angeles, with the car which had been stolen from Balboa.

He was intoxicated and two tires on the car were flat, apparently from striking curbs, officers reported. Newport Beach police were notified and came to Santa Ana for Hovey, while the car was towed to a garage, repaired, and returned to Anderson. Hovey was charged with drunkenness and suspicion of grand theft and will be arraigned in Newport Beach.

"Secondly, whatever money may be budgeted for community advertising would be spent by the city and not by the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber of Commerce functions in this connection only in an advisory capacity, and for the purpose of doing the work of preparing and distributing the advertising matter, just to relieve the council of any expense in having it prepared and published and distributed."

"And finally, the money will be disbursed by the council on regular warrants, and only as needed for such advertising matters as the Chamber of Commerce, or the city council or both these bodies co-operatively, may deem necessary for the best interests of the whole community."

"In other words, the taxpayers of the city of Santa Ana have deemed it wise to provide, through general taxation, a community advertising fund; and by common consent and almost universal precedent and practice, this advertising fund is expended through the Chamber of Commerce, that body is especially designed and best equipped to provide the advertising matter and distribute it in the most efficient and economical manner."

GAMBLERS AT
STOP ORDERS

Gambling in Seal Beach, "running wide open" several weeks ago, has ended and will not be permitted to return. It was ascertained by Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputies Merle Dean and G. F. McKelvey after a personal tour of inspection at the beach city Saturday night.

Sheriff Jackson visited the Walker Night club and the Jewel City Inn, where virtually all the gambling was reported to have been operating, and saw that the gambling rooms had been stripped bare of the lavish equipment that had been imported by the gambling interests.

Albert E. Walker, proprietor of the cafe and Ballard Barron, reported to be the man who leased the "back rooms" and operated the gambling activities, were told by Jackson that no gambling will be permitted to come into Seal Beach and that the full force of the sheriff's office will be used, if necessary, to insure this fact.

At the Jewel City Inn, which was reported to have operated the gambling tables only a few nights, everything had been moved out. Barron told Sheriff Jackson that everything "had been moved back to the ship," it was learned.

Jackson delivered an ultimatum to Seal Beach police Saturday that he was taking over the campaign to keep out the gamblers, following the failure of the local officials to keep the city free from the evils which were revealed in a series of articles in The Register recently.

'NO DONATIONS'
RESOLUTION TO BOARD TONIGHT

The tax saving policy resolution presented to the city council last Monday night by Councilman A. L. LeGaye, and which in effect says "No Donations from City Tax Funds," will be among matters to be considered by the city council at its regular meeting tonight.

When other councilmen failed to support the resolution last week, it was made a special order of business for tonight's meeting by Mayor E. G. Warner, who expressed favor with the intent of the document, which is to prevent raids on the treasury by any private group and hold taxes down to the lowest requirement necessary to conduct the essential services of government.

Intense interest has been shown by taxpayers in council proceedings leading up to approval of the budget, and it is expected a large delegation will be on hand in support of the resolution and to oppose any further "handouts" of tax money by the city board. The meeting starts promptly at 7:30 o'clock in the city hall offices in the Santora building, at Second street and Broadway.

TWO NEW FILMS AT WEST COAST TODAY

Two new feature films open today at the West Coast theater. They are "Let's Talk It Over" and "Most Precious Thing in Life."

"Let's Talk It Over" stars Chester Morris in the role of a cocky sailor whose unadulterated "brass" makes him think he is friend of the heiress and her society set. Mae Clark plays the part of the heiress and Frank Craven is her uncle.

"Most Precious Thing in Life" is the screen adaption of the popular magazine story published under the name of "Biddy." Jean Arthur, Donald Cook, Richard Cromwell, Anita Louise, Mary Forbes, Ben Alexander and others are starred in the picture. The story is said to be entertaining.

A cartoon and World News events completes the program.

Sneeden's car crashed into the bridge rail when he tried to avoid another car which turned in front of him from a side road. A man and two girls riding with Sneeden were slightly hurt. The car was demolished when a piece of timber from the bridge railing penetrated the front end of the auto and tore the top and rear end apart.

When a tire blew out on the car of Humphrey Marshall, 49, Eagle Rock, while he was driving on Los Alamitos boulevard, near Lincoln boulevard about midnight last night, his car crashed into a machine driven by Mrs. Monica Stanley, 22, Los Angeles, and injured five persons. Those hurt were Bell Marshall, 47, and John Marshall, 12, both of Eagle Rock; Walter Teubner, 12, Monica Stanley, 22, and Deva Padde, 42, all of Los Angeles.

E. W. Barrows, 24, and W. G. Kidder, 26, both of Pasadena, were brought to the Santa Ana valley hospital early today with minor injuries suffered in a wreck between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach on the Coast boulevard. Kidder suffered a fractured knee.

TOMORROW IS DEADLINE FOR FUND REQUESTS DRUNKEN DRIVING CASE BEFORE JURY

The case of Earl J. Chandler, charged with drunk driving was expected to reach the jury today in Superior Judge G. K. Scoovel's court, where trial began last Thursday.

Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, for the prosecution, and Defense Counsel Z. B. West were summing up the evidence before the jury at this morning's court session.

Chandler was arrested when he allegedly drove through a crowd of traffic assembled at an automobile wreck near Garden Grove, disregarding officers' flashlight signals to stop.

ONTARIO MAN DROWNED AT BEACH SUNDAY GIRL FINISHES FIVE YEARS OF SCHOOL IN ONE

Credited with the intelligence of a 12-year-old girl, Marianita Wolf, seven, daughter of Ajax Wolf, of Laguna Beach, has just completed five grades in the first year of her schooling. It was learned today.

She is one of the pupils at La Escuela del Mar, established at Laguna Beach about five years ago by Elba Julie Johnson for the purpose of effecting an educational adjustment for children of high intellectual endowment.

Miss Johnson said that Marianita is a typical example of the gifted child. At the age of seven years she excels in fifth grade subject in school, studies astronomy and composes stories at home.

The girl has not been urged to advance faster in school than other children, the instructor said, and has just followed her natural rate of progress.

FINES PAID

E. W. Danielson, charged with drunkenness, had a five day jail sentence suspended and paid a $1 fine in police court Saturday while L. A. Haynes paid a $1 overtime parking fine.

The tragedy was witnessed by Mrs. Fisher, who was on the beach with her husband.

Twelve assists and two rescues of drowning persons were reported at the beach by lifeguards, as the season's largest crowd thronged to the ocean.

The Public Forum

Communications under this heading must be signed by the name of the writer. These communications express the opinions of the writers of them. The opinions may or may not be the opinions of The Register.

Dear Editor:

I have received the following letter. I am sending it on to you with the profound hope that it will be published in the Santa Ana Register as I am very much interested in this sight for the release of Tom Mooney.

A READER.

California State Prison,
San Quentin, Cal.

May 12, 1934.

Dear Friend:

My attorneys, Frank P. Walsh of New York City, John F. Finerty of Washington, D. C., and George T. Davis of San Francisco, filed my application for a writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court for Northern California, at San Francisco on the 7th day of May 1934, charging violation of the "due process of law" clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution on the grounds of my having been acquitted May 24, 1933, on one indictment which covered the identical material of the indictment on which I was convicted February 8, 1917, and that such conviction was the direct result of a premeditated and deliberate frameup conspiracy on the part of the prosecuting and police officials by concealing and suppressing evidence material to justice and the defense, using vital testimony that they knew to be perjury, coaching of states witnesses that amounted to subornation of perjury, exhibiting the defendants to prospective states' witnesses instead of having them identified in the regular manner, and generally inflaming the public mind of the community with highly prejudicial statements issued by the District Attorney and the police department and published daily in the newspapers before, during, and after the trials.

If the United States District Court denies this writ it will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and then the United States Supreme Court, if that be necessary.

The initial expenses for this legal work places a tremendous burden of raising $5000 upon my defense committee for briefing the great wealth of material in this eighteen year old case, stenographic, typing and other clerical help, office rent, supplies, printing and binding of briefs, postage, telegrams, telephone and transportation and traveling expenses for at least one of my attorneys, all of whom have volunteered their services without fee.

It will be absolutely necessary for me to take a Pauper's Oath if permitted by the Court to have the Federal Courts pay the actual court costs of my petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

This whole program will be in jeopardy if we are unable to raise this indispensable sum. This emergency compels me to plead with you for a donation to be used exclusively for expenses directly connected with this Federal Court action. Your past generous support of this cause gives me hope that you will come to our immediate financial assistance. No contribution can be too large or too small, considering the task at hand of mass unemployment. Won't you please help us overcome this most unhappy situation? May I hope for an early and favorable reply to this very urgent appeal?

Please accept in advance my warmest personal regards, best fraternal greetings and heartfelt thankful appreciation for any consideration shown this communication.

Sincerely,

TON MOONEY, 31821.

Address all communication and make all funds payable to the Tom Mooney Molders' Defense Committee, P. O. Box 1475, San Francisco, California.

The Editor:

I see in your paper of the 6th Inst. that the poor Chamber of Commerce wants only $4250 of the taxpayers' money. Also in reading your paper you do not agree with the proposition. Why not?

Haven't they said if they could get it the glass factory would come here after we, (the people), built up a foreign trade for it? Of course they did not tell the council that they would sell glass to the foreign trade cheaper than they would to the domestic trade. (Which they have always done).

S. A. Liquor Store Quits Business

The United Liquor store, which until recently was located on North Broadway, has closed up and moved the stock and fixtures away. The store opened for business immediately upon repeal of prohibition and was operated by local bottling and soft drink interests.

YOUTH KILLED IN ATTEMPT AT THEFT

FRESNO, Cal., July 9.—(UPI)—Fifteen-year-old Allen Meek was dead today, the victim of what police said was an attempt to take an automobile. The youth, a fugitive from the Fresno detention home, was shot and wounded by either C. A. Webb Jr. or his brother, Joseph Webb, when he allegedly attempted to take an automobile from the driveway of the Webb home.

The youth died at the county hospital, where his mother, Mrs. Edith Meek, 35, was treated for self-administered poison.

Grief over another son's conviction on burglary charges and her husband's unemployment led her to attempt to take her life, her daughters said.

The arrests were made as company officials smuggled into the 5700-acre farm approximately 30 workers to till fields neglected since June 25 when workers walked out in protest against wage cuts and discharge of temporary employees.

In front of the farm 200 pickets marched up and down, shouting to hell with the cops—they can't save us from picketing." Women in overalls marched side by side with their men folk, jeering at county officers and deputies and deputized farmers guarding the gates.

The pickets, singled out by officers, were herded into an abandoned ice box on the farm. An ambulance, summoned from Bridgeton, carried them to jail where they were held on charges of disorderly conduct and inciting to riot.

So disarmed were the strikers that they made only half-hearted attempts to halt the progress of four tractors driven across the state highway by strike breakers.

Officers indicated the arrests would be continued throughout the day.

Smuggling of the workers through a back road into the farm was believed to have forestalled serious outbreaks, threatened by the strike leaders when company heads announced their intention of resuming work today.

First intimation of their presence came when the delegation marched to the beet fields, to be greeted by the jeers of the marchers.

SECURITIES

The foundations of the old ICC building are to be strengthened before the new securities commissioners move in.

Everyone agrees it would be dangerous to permit such strong personalities to assemble without extra strong foundations. They would shake an ordinary building down in a week.

Initial tremors from the inside were noticeable even before the commission assembled for the first meeting. These were caused by Mr. Ferdin Pecora, the financial bloodhound. Mr. Pecora smokes big black cigars, and what is more, he bites them. He gnashed one to shreds a few days ago when the word was brought to him that Joseph Kennedy was to be chairman of the commission.

CHOICES
Everyone concluded that it was because the White House had failed to notify Mr. Pecora that he was not to be chairman. That is not exactly correct. What happened on the inside was this:

President Roosevelt followed the recommendations of his liberal advisers and picked three liberals first for the commission—Landis, Mathews and Healy. Landis was to be chairman.

Scouting around for two months, Mr. Roosevelt's eye struck Pecora. Mr. Pecora was asked if he would take the chairmanship of the commission. He said he would for one year only. That was satisfactory to Landis, who understood that the chairmanship would rotate every year and that he probably would be the next chairman after Pecora.

But then Mr. Roosevelt noted his commission had four liberals and no one from Wall Street and probably no one who ever owned a security. To even matters up, he made Kennedy the fifth member, representing Wall Street. The liberals thought that was even-four for them and one for Wall Street.

Some one suggested Wall Street might find out that one was not half of five, so, for the sake of appearances, it was agreed that Mr. Kennedy should be the chairman. It looked better. That is, it did to everyone save Mr. Pecora, who had not been consulted.

CHIP
When Mr. Pecora heard about it, he intimated to a friendly newsman that he might not show up to be sworn with the others. That news was flashed around town and the liberal inner circle started circumscribing itself trying to locate and placate Mr. Pecora. The official swearing was delayed three hours while Mr. Pecora was being patted on the back and urged to be quiet.

Mr. Landis appointed himself peacemaker. He put Kennedy in one room and Pecora in another and shuttled between them.

Mr. Pecora's position was that he had spent a long time digging up the dirt on Wall Street, that among the dark nuggets he had panned was the same Mr. Kennedy, and he's be dogged if he would let such a man be his boss. That was a hard one to answer. Mr. Landis spent some time at it before he finally got Messrs. Kennedy and Pecora on speaking terms.

Immediately after the election of Kennedy by the commission, however, Mr. Pecora went off to New York, explaining he had to settle up a little private business. Up to the time this was written, Mr. Pecora was still in New York. He did not attend the last half dozen conferences or meetings of the commission.

Mr. Pecora will come back all right, eventually, but it is clear that he is going to serve out his year with a chip on his shoulder.

NEW BOSS
Kennedy is really a find for the chairmanship from a publicity standpoint. He is good-natured, makes friends easily and is certain to become an outstanding Washington personality. Already all the newsmen who have come in contact with him are singing his praises. He speaks their language.

There was one reporter who insisted on asking embarrassing questions at several press conferences. When the reporter spoke up again at the last conference, Kennedy broke in and said: "Say, don't you ever go away on a vacation or something?"

It saved Kennedy from answering the questions.

OIL
A few days ago, Mr. Ickes announced he had decided to "let" the Justice department go ahead with the prosecution of that oil code test case.

The fact is that Mr. Ickes' interest in oil has tried in many previous ways to get the Justice department to prosecute the case. The Justice department has steadily declined. The inner situation between the two departments became bitter issue.

Mr. Ickes' use of the word "let" clearly indicates that he has discovered that oil may be used on words as well as machinery.

PLEASED
The makeup of the new federal commission gives the aviation industry its first pleasant surprise in months. Insiders say the boys had candidates of their own but never figured they'd get anywhere. They were ready to be grateful just to escape such "radicals" as General Billy Mitchell and Clarence Chamberlain. Now it turns out that four of the five members were on the industry's private list. You can imagine the glee.

The designation of Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution—as chairman isn't as strange as it seems. He's favorably remembered for his work on the Coolidge-Smith railroad board. And he's had an unpaid debit on the administration for campaign services rendered.

NOTES
When Senator Borah said in his speech over the NBC radio chain that he would report again on his bureaucracy issue in mid-October, if he could get radio time, the Columbia chain representatives here (Harry Butcher) went to him and promised him the time. It was arranged for Borah to speak on a national network or on about October 15.

Plans mean nothing to Mr. Roosevelt. His itinerary provided definitely that he would not go ashore in Haiti, but, when he got there, he decided he wanted to go ashore and did.

One of the varsity brain trustees

walked into the treasury the other day and approached the policeman at the door, asking: "Where is the freshman team?" The policeman did not request any further identification, but responded at once: "Room 306." That is where Mr. Morgenthau's new freshman brain trust hangs out.

NEW YORK
By James McMullan

GERMANY

New Yorkers in close touch with Germany doubt that Hitler's rigorous suppression of the Roehm rebellion will bring any more than a lull in internal hostilities.

They get the dope that Goering is now the real boss even though he still pays lip service to Hitler. It is exactly what the Junkers and industrialists wanted and they got it quicker and with less trouble than they expected.

Financial experts rate it significant that Goering did not move in Berlin for seven hours after the arrest of Roehm and Heines in Munich. Why? To be sure Hitler had come out right side up. If Roehm's troops had turned the tables on him Goering would have changed his tactics to fit but the end result would have been the same.

Goebbel's star has suddenly set. He strung with Hitler against his political friends to save his own hide—which eliminates him from the leadership contest. It's understood he'll be lucky if that's the worst that happens to him.

Note that Hjalmar Schacht of the Reichsbank is lying low. Insiders will give you odds that he eventually turns up on the winning side.

NOMINAL
The radicals have lost their leaders and are temporarily impotent but they won't take kindly to Goering's iron-fisted dictation and there are too many of them to be permanently ignored. The Junkers may keep the upper hand for a while by sheer terrorism but keen observers predict that an eventual explosion on a much bigger scale is inevitable. Hitler is now committed to the Junkers' game and will remain in nominal power as long as he continues to play it—but no longer.

OIL
New York gets a laugh out of the government's latest effort to get rid of the "hot oil" problem.

Everything looked rosy for a statement whereby the East Texas independents were to lay off extra legal production in return for giving the large companies provide a ready market for their products. In fact this solution was officially announced but it didn't come off and here's why.

The government thought it had a smart system to make sure the independents would keep their end of the bargain. It was provided that they should only be paid three-fourths of the price of their products—the remaining fourth being withheld until full compliance was proved.

This ingenious device didn't freeze the hot oil lads a bit. They simply jacked the price of spot gas from three cents to four. That way the 75 per cent they would collect immediately equalled 100 per cent of the old price. Then the big companies which had agreed to purchase balked at the rise and the deal was off.

Experts say the new federal tax on oil will probably do more to curb the bootlegging menace than anything else yet tried. Severe penalties for false tax returns sort of give the boys pause. The hot oil output is already 20 per cent below two weeks ago. But New Yorkers who know East Texas say the operators will soon find a new way to give Mr. Ickes headaches.

REVIVAL
New York bankers get word that Secretary Morgenthau's private brain trust will make a detailed examination of the Federal Monetary Authority proposal introduced at the last Congress and submit recommendations. This aspect of their research hasn't been publicized but it may turn out to be their most important job.

Insiders expect the Monetary Authority to be revived with a bang at the next session of Congress as a feature of Mr. Roosevelt's permanent program.

BLOCKED
The well laid plans of nine New York Clearing House banks to pay their pro rata share of the Harriman Bank losses and thus escape further liability has come a cropper. The Harriman Bank Depositors' Protective Committee objects to the settlement on the ground that Clearing House officers who made the pledge should not be released from further claims because of the partial payment. That blocks any hope of getting 90 per cent depositor approval as required by the plan and dumps the whole mess back in the government's lap.

It looks as if the Clearing House banks may have to stick together in spite of themselves.

ORDINANCE ON WATER SYSTEM GIVEN READING

Aid Group Will Gather Thursday

SAN CLEMENTE, July 9.—First reading was given an ordinance for issuance of $40,000 bonds for construction of the waterworks system Friday night at regular meeting of the city council. Mayor Smith stated that at least a month and probably more would elapse before men would be working on this project. The second reading of ordinance will be given at an adjourned meeting July 12. The federal government approved a loan and grant for the project some time ago.

W. A. Ayer stated that when plans and specifications are returned with State Engineer Tracy's approval there will be a call for bids.

Reports were presented from various departments. Receipts from city court for June total $578; golf course, $136; pier, May, $184; June, $374.54, the largest ever reported. The report from the water department showed San Clemente wells one and two, both pumping, produced 640 gallons per minute.

Mrs. Helen Doris Hopkins, wife of J. B. Hopkins, who has charge of the fire station and contingent jail, was appointed police matron without pay.

The scale of charges for use of the social clubhouse hitherto in force was repealed, with a new scale adopted. During the months of May, June, July, August and September local organizations may have dancing parties at $12.50; afternoon functions, $5; meetings, $2.50; church and philanthropic purposes (use of dining room and kitchen only), $5.

From October to April, inclusive, prices for dances and meetings remain the same, but afternoon functions and kitchen and dining room use for philanthropic purposes will be increased to $6. For non-local organizations, the night rate is $25 and afternoons, $12.50.

John Killen, in charge of city garbage disposal, asked the council to include in the new budget a new provision for city payment of this service.

GEORGE MORSE, BEACH PIONEER ANSWERS CALL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 9.—George J. Morse, 80 years of age, probably one of the first residents of this part of Orange county, and believed to have been the original settler at Huntington Beach, died at Inglewood Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. De Peay. The funeral will be held from the Christian church in this city at 2:30 p.m. Friday afternoon.

Mr. Morse leaves a widow and nine children, including Mrs. P. W. Elliott of this city, the only member of the family now residing in Huntington Beach.

Mr. Morse owned the place now known as the Mrs. D. O. Stewart ranch, long before there was a town at Huntington Beach. He and his wife resided on this ranch which is on the east side of the city for many years, finally disposing of it to Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Stewart.

After selling their home Mr. and Mrs. Morse moved from Huntington Beach, returning a few years later and residing here until two or three years ago when they went to Inglewood to make their home with their daughter in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse devoted much time to church work. They were among the organizers and first members of the Christian church here and were lifelong members and workers in the church.

SCHOOL BOARD TO HIRE ARCHITECT

LAGUNA BEACH, July 9.—Employment of an architect and consideration of preliminary plans and specifications for construction of additional school buildings, are included in matters to come before the board of education members at a meeting to be held tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Park avenue school, it was announced today.

Inquiries revealed that the school trustees have practically agreed upon employing the firm of Allison and Allison, well known Los Angeles school architects for the new building project. It also was learned that under provisions of a new state law, dealing with the construction of school buildings, it will be necessary for the board to employ an engineer or competent superintendent of construction to supervise the building operations, including the checking of material that goes into the job as well as insuring the strict observance of safety guards required by the specifications.

Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips entertained a large party in their home Sunday, among the guests being Mr. Phillips' brother, Maurice Phillips and wife and son, James Ramsey of Santa Ana, and their guests from Chicago, a sister and niece of Mrs. Phillips; Mr. and Mrs. Eckford Tyler, of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler and son, Paul, and daughter, June, of Buena Park. On Tuesday Mrs. Phillips' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reutter, of Saugus, were guests for the day.

FRESCOES BY YENS ATTRACT ATTENTION

The studies, exponents of Italian fresco technique, are entitled "Prometheus" and "Pulcherrima." The latter in particular is an exquisite piece of work portraying a beautiful feminine figure in rapport with all nature, the sun, the wind, vegetation and the flowers which the artist uses as background.

The group played for the Frontier celebration from July 1 to 5. The boys have had engagements in Albuquerque, Tucson and Phoenix.

For the past few months the Yens studio has been the mecca of art lovers, including several distinguished Los Angeles and Pasadena artists who came down to see the fresco creations.

BACKSLIDER IS DISCUSSED BY REV. SCHMOOCK

"The course of the backslider, as a rule, is gradual," said the Rev. William Schmoock, in his Sunday sermon at Trinity Lutheran church, when he discussed the danger of fall from grace, using Cain as an illustration of his meaning. He said:

"People who have always been considered good and upright Christians are frequently revealed as unfaithful, and we are troubled, and ask: How can a child of God again become a servant of sin? We will find the answer in the story of Cain and Abel as recorded in Gen. 4, 5-8.

"Cain was the son of pious parents and undoubtedly had himself, once believed. He even, at the time of the story, recorded here, was outwardly connected

YOUTH TELLS CHURCHMEN NOT TO REPEAT WORLD WAR ERROR WHEN CHURCH SPURNED JESUS

As youth sees it, the message of Jesus to the church today is that this world is God's world and that Christian people should be up and doing to keep it God's world—to prevent, for one thing, repetition of the mistake made by the churches 20 years ago when they turned their back upon God and justified the World War as a conflict in a holy cause.

"Because Cain would not heed the Word and warnings of God, his enmity against his brother finally culminated in the act; he slew his brother, and thus was revealed as a servant of sin. Of his own free will he had chosen the evil way. When a man is no longer sincere in his service of God, and in his heart will not heed the warnings of the Bible and his conscience, he has removed himself from the protection of the Holy Spirit and of his own free will again becomes a servant of sin, for: To whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, thy servants ye are to whom ye obey."

"The course of the backslider as a rule, is a gradual one. He becomes careless in his worship, will not heed God's warnings, sin becomes ever dearer to him, until finally he stands revealed also before his fellow-men as a servant of sin. Let us take heed: 'Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.'"

These were the assertions of two Santa Ana youths, Jack Rimmel and Leonard Morris, who were speakers at the union church service last evening in the United Presbyterian church.

The war itself was a violation of the precepts and commandments of the Prince of Peace, said Rimmel. Jesus had said "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you."

"By no stretch of the imagination can we find justification for departing from those clear, simple words," said Rimmel. "Yet 20 years ago the Frenchman came to hate the German. The American grew to hate all but the Allies, and the whole world departed from the side of Jesus."

The visitors as well as the vanquished received blows from which they have not yet recovered, and will not for many years recover. The world as a unit received a blow from which it will never recover—where even the churches, who had pledged themselves ever to carry the flag of Jesus, flung it in the mud of blood and dirt, and turned their backs upon Jesus, to lend their efforts by branding the war as a fight for holy

Today, as then, Jesus would not spend time criticizing or lamenting past failures, but would rather urge that the past be forgotten and faces be turned toward the future, to do the great work ahead, he declared.

Reformations of the church under Martin Luther and John Wesley were mountain peaks of great vision upon the part of church and churchmen, said Morris, after describing a recent trip he had made to Mt. San Jacinto, and the wonderful view from the ranger station there.

And the church, now, has a new opportunity for great vision, he said, in seeing and seizing upon the great opportunities for service to the world; of finding and presenting solutions of the great problems such as poverty, war, and the distribution of work and food.

the Western Christian Record; the Rev. Frank W. Cooper, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Santa Ana; and Willis O. Tyler, colored attorney, of Los Angeles, addressed the meeting.

RIGHTEOUSNESS OF MAN IS NOT KEY TO HEAVEN

life were called Pharisees or separatists by their enemies. Compared to the Sadducees the Pharisees were orthodox, they believed in the resurrection of the dead, in angels, and the judgment to come. They endeavored to live according to the letter of the law and the prophets, but they rejected Christ as the Messiah.

The righteousness of the Pharisees was of a high order, but Christ said that His disciples must have a higher righteousness than they had to enter into the kingdom of heaven. Something was wrong with their righteousness, it was not perfect enough to gain entrance into the kingdom of heaven. A higher righteousness was required for entry into the kingdom of heaven.

He said: "There are two kinds of righteousness mentioned in the Scriptures, one that of man and the other that of Christ. The scribes and Pharisees were law abiding citizens and scrupulously observed the commandments and the law.

Some people think of them as being low and mean; they were not, and we lose the force of Christ's argument in our text if we think of them as such. After the Babylonian captivity a movement was started to clean house in Israel, in win Christ, and be found in Him not having my own righteousness which is of the law, but that of which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is given commands unto the apostles whom he had chosen."

"There in the words of Paul you have the righteousness that exceeds the righteousness of the Pharisees, a righteousness that is perfect and admits into the kingdom of heaven. It is Christ's righteousness appropriated by faith. It is a substitutionary righteousness which brings us to the foot of the cross and gives us an understanding of the way of Christ's death.

"All our righteousness is as filthy rags—'Could my tears forever flow, all for sin could not atone; Thou must save, and Thou alone.' Remember the improperly dressed guest at the wedding feast of the King's Son, he did not have on a wedding gown—Christ's righteousness. From the Book of Revelation: 'Who are these? They have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb.'

"What shall we say, then, it is futile and unnecessary to attain human righteousness? God forbid! Scripture commands and demands human righteousness, but Christ's righteousness must cover all. In my hands no price I bring, Simply to Thy cross I bring."

Luncheon Club Meets
in Trellised Arbor
At Cozad Home

Friday's meeting of Golden State Luncheon club was a most enjoyable affair for members who were entertained in the home on Tustin avenue of Mrs. John Cozad.

While vacation pleasures have called many club members from the city, those remaining felt that the beauty of the surroundings as they chattered over their needlework or joined in bridge games, atoned for the joys of travel which they were missing.

For Mrs. Cozad received guests in her garden and it was there that they enjoyed the covered dish menu at the noon hour. The table was arranged in a vine-covered trellis near a big barbecue grill used in preparing some of the dishes. Nearby were beds of flaming dahlias and zinnias, with low growing petunias to scent the air with fragrance.

The next regular meeting of the Luncheon club will be on Friday, August 3 when members will meet with their prepared dishes for luncheon with Mrs. Jerome E. Stephenson, 507 South Flower street. In the meantime there will be a special quilting session on Thursday, July 19 when Mrs. Ruth Lhouman will entertain in her home on West Fifth street. This will be a covered dish luncheon also.

Club Spends Pleasant Day in This City

Members of the Jolly 16 club of Huntington Beach spent a pleasant day Thursday as guests in the home of Mrs. Iva Lamham, 812 1/2 West Fourth street.

Flowers decked the rooms, providing a colorful setting for a noon day covered-dish luncheon. The game of 500 was played, with prizes going to Mrs. Kitty Skinner and Mrs. Alvina Atkinson, scoring first and second high. Mrs. Emilie Lewis was consoled.

Birthday gifts were presented Mrs. Laura Hudson and Mrs. Flossie Anderson.

Plans were made to have a theatre party next Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in Long Beach. The next regular meeting of the club will be held Thursday, August 2 in the home of Mrs. Kitty Skinner, Midway City.

Santa Anans Privileged To Meet Argentinian
Dramatic Star

Miss Beulah May, 1002 Mabury street, whose abilities as a writer of quite unusual poetry make her a valuable member of various California writing groups, yesterday attended the meeting of the Los Angeles Verse Writers' club held in the home of the president, Leetha Journey Probst, in La Canada. Miss May was accompanied by Mrs. Robert R. Shafer and Mrs. Burr Shafer, who were special guests at the affair.

Thorwald Probst assisted his gifted wife in receiving the guests, and there were many special features planned as entertainment in advance of the studio supper which completed the afternoon.

John Steven McGroarty, that gentle sage of the Green Verdugo Hills, was among the speakers but chief in point of interest was Berta Singerman, dramatic star of Argentina, whose name is surrounded by the same luster that attaches to Raquel Miller and La Argentina. Miss Singerman was born in Russia but was taken to Argentina when only four years old, so all of her training and background are South American. She gave dramatic readings yesterday, some of them in Spanish. She has just signed a contract with the Fox Film company to do a series of pictures in Spanish.

Shower gifts for Mrs. Davis were presented to her in a bassinet given lovingly with silk, lace and ribbons in pink, blue and white.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KLINE

© 1934 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Of Mother Goose soared 'round and 'round, and as she came close to the ground, she waved at all the Tinies, and they smiled and waved at her.

"Twas she who treated us so grand, and brought us to this lovely land," said Goldy. "Now, I'll bet you something else soon will occur."

Our ride with her, some weeks ago, was on a broom. I'd like to know why she now has a goose. Perhaps it is a lot more fun.

The monstrous bird darts and fro. Just watch it, now, Gee, see it go! I'll bet it is the fastest thing on wings, beneath the sun."

Just then Old Mother Hubbard said, "Well, Fido has been real well fed. I don't know how I'll ever thank you for that piece of beef. My hound was hungry—almost sick. He gobbled up the meat real quick. To know that he is better, now, is quite a big relief."

And then he shouted, "Oh, look there! That goose is dropping from the air." The goose had landed safely, and to him the Tinies ran.

Kind Mother Goose cried, "Well wee tots, I hope that you've had lots and lots of fun in Mother Goose land. You've seen all there is to see."

I'm going to let my goose take you to some place where there's something new." "How can he take us?" Goldy said. "I'm puzzled as can be."

I have a basket you can use and, since there is no time to lose, I'll run and get it. It's at my house," came the quick reply.

The basket soon was fastened tight, and everything seemed quite all right. The Tinies climbed right in, all set to sail forth in the sky.

face red when the big surprise came?

What the surprise was and how it will be told in tonight's Goodrich playlet on KREG at 8:40. It will give much food for thought for wives—and husbands, program official stated.

These playlets are scheduled each Monday on KREG.

KREG NOTES

"Flowers that Bloom in the Late Summer" will be the main topic of Harry L. Bateson's "Garden School of the Air" broadcast from KREG tonight at 8:15; it was announced.

In addition to this topic, Bateson will discuss further the subject of the back-to-the-wall movement which he originated.

Bateson's daily mail is now representing practically every community in Orange county and comprises enthusiastic comments from listeners upon his broadcasts. In addition to requests for his free booklets on gardening, it was stated.

Judge Newcomb Condee of the Civil Court will face the C. B. S. microphone at 2 p. m. tomorrow with an address on the "Jurisdiction of the Fall to Provide Court" during the civic broadcast from KREG at that time.

Charles Leirly, the "Melody Lane" tenor, will sing "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "Marchets" and "Loch Lomond" during the feature program tonight on KREG, 10:15 to 11. "Melody Lane" is scheduled nightly at that time on the local station.

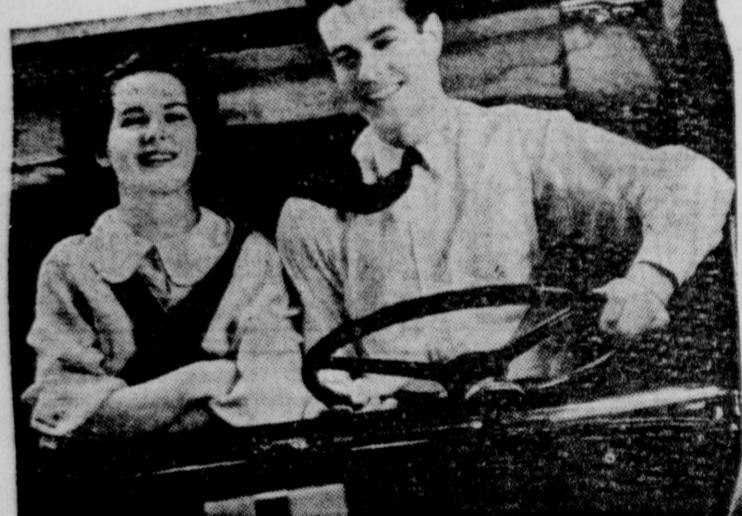

John Page will read verses he has been asked to repeat, or poems submitted by fans, tonight on his 6:45 to 7 poetry and organ quartet in Ellen's new car, but was her hour on KREG.

GOODRICH PLAYLET ON KREG TONIGHT

"Men always want to spend money on the most idiotic things," Ellen Davis said as she and her friend Lucile Graves were riding in Ellen's new car, but was her hour on KREG.

USING THE NEEDY TO INCREASE POWER

We have written today discussing the idea of the method of some politicians of getting and keeping office. We do not blame men who are elected to office for appointing friends and supporters in their departments, rather than those who opposed them for election, providing these people are competent and providing the office is there and needs filling. Of course it should be filled by friends rather than opponents.

What we do object to is what we have described in the other writing. Further we desire to suggest that there are some phases of public life to which the plan of politicians, of trying to get voters to support the "organization," should never be used.

A particular phase of this is that of the welfare department of our county and of what has developed through the depression into a tremendous work for the unemployed and the needy.

If there ever were a place where training, broad views of humanity and the highest ideals of service should eliminate, entirely from the political program, anything in the nature of the kind of politics that we have been describing, it is in relation to the welfare department having to do with the unemployed and the needy.

And yet, to the utter shame of men in public position, and of influence, there has been as much or more politics in relation to this department of our public activity than to any other.

It is not confined to Orange county, but neither, by any means, is Orange county free from it. Discussing this phase of matters, the Los Angeles Evening Post last Saturday, made some very pertinent remarks. It said:

"It is too much to hope that the vast relief program can be kept out of politics. It is inevitable that officials anxious to succeed themselves or obtain higher offices, that political parties in power, and candidates will attempt to gain the ballots of those who obtain or need help in these emergencies.

"What the unemployed man and woman can do in this matter is to refuse to be either fooled or frightened.

"They can remember that every dollar now available for relief comes from all the people, not from any politician nor any political party.

"They can remember that when any official who has power over any fund attempts to furnish an alibi for failure, he has only indicted himself for incompetency.

"They can remember that, if any party attempts to take credit for furnishing food to the hungry, or work to the idle on public funds, it is claiming credit it does not deserve.

"No man or woman out of a job, no father of hungry children needs barter his citizenship for relief and help.

"This army of men and women, unfortunately too great, must not be herded to the polls on false pretenses.

"They should remember that what they get is not given, but disbursed on the theory that they will again become useful to society."

The Register is not ashamed of the position that it has constantly taken on this question. It has opposed the domination of the group in political control in this county from continuing and increasing their powers over the unemployed as a part of this "spoils" system.

It has done this because it has known from the experience through which we have passed, that the primary interest has not been the unemployed or the needy, but it has been the development of a political "machine."

When the unemployed were dependent upon private effort for what they received, we had to fight this group openly, because they said "no such need existed."

When they threw 3500 unemployed out on the street, and said they had no money, we proved that there was money, upwards of $300,000, unappropriated, that they could use. They still maintained that the "need was not serious."

When the federal government stepped into the breach, immediately the same ones who had discounted the needs, magnified them manyfold, so as to get large appropriations from the federal government, and we know the influences that were used on the unemployed and the manner in which the additions to the "machine" were made.

This was the reason for the enlargement of the committee. And we have been held up, in the work of the SERA, for weeks, because of the effort of this same political group to keep a strangle hold on that department of public work.

We have been told that three of this committee asked one of the applicants for a job some question as to whether he favored The Register or its publisher, or agreed with it, or something of that kind. This was one of the three questions asked this particular applicant.

It showed a positive determination on the part of this political group to carry on, on behalf of the same kind of politics which The Register has been fighting.

As long ago as the 13th of June, the publisher of The Register, expressing himself in a letter directed to Mr. R. C. Branson, who is at the head of this department in the state, wrote in relation to this very matter as follows:

"I am writing this in part to acquaint you with the facts concerning that matter, and to urge the appointment of someone entirely outside of politics, and probably outside of this county—some socially trained representative—who can take over this work, not because of being supported by political factions or factors, but because you and your advisors in the state know that he is well equipped, both by training and experience to handle the job."

This is the kind of politics in relation to the unemployed, that the publisher of The Register believes in, and The Register is endeavoring to further.

If it cannot get its ideals, it believes in those men who most nearly approach them. It certainly would protest against those who are utterly at variance with them and would destroy them.

THOSE WHO PROFIT SUPPORT THE SYSTEM

It has been an adage in politics, and a principle observed by certain kinds of politicians, that "to the victors belong the spoils." The enunciation of this doctrine is usually credited to Andrew Jackson.

The application of it has been one of the great curses of our nation. Political organizations are built primarily by patronage, and patronage consists of getting appointments for the deserving. It consists too often of the creation of unneeded jobs for the "faithful," and special favors, in the way of contracts for service or for goods, for the other friends who do not want or cannot get appointments.

This produces a certain kind of loyalty on the principle that the "ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib," and these people will support those who feed them, even if it is done from the treasury of the political division.

Folks are often surprised at the type of people whom they find supporting skullduggery in politics. But frequently if they knew the facts, and knew how the one who is defending this kind of thing is himself, or his family, the recipient of favors through appointments or business connections, or sales to the county or city, they would understand perfectly just why it is that such fine and outstanding people seem to be perfectly happy over a condition which seems to shock the other citizens.

Frankly, The Register doesn't believe in that kind of politics. It is happy to know that the politicians who do believe in it, and are working it, are opposed to The Register and for what it stands.

We hope that we will so conduct the paper that as long as these kinds of politicians have influence and power, they will be opposed to this paper. If it ever reaches the point that this paper favors the kind of politics that takes money out of the public treasury to pay political debts and to keep up a political organization, it will be evidence that the paper is unworthy of support by the citizens of the country.

The National Game

Oakland Tribune

The score does not indicate it was what we would call a good game, but Scotland beat England in their first international baseball contest, 24 to 8.

That the game is invading Great Britain in way to threaten the ancient reign of cricket is an assertion from a correspondent of the National Geographic Society, who recalls that time, 60 years ago, when Boston and Philadelphia teams sought to introduce it on English soil. The American visitors were courteously received, fourteen games were played, and the Britains went on playing cricket.

Some of this correspondent's comments and recollections should interest the American fan. Whence ever Americans have settled, he says, baseball is played. Igorot boys of Luzon are keen supporters of their local teams. Entering the harbor of Pago Pago, Samoa, the first thing one sees through the palms along the shore is an immaculate baseball diamond. Puerto Rico and Hawaii have their enthusiastic fans. In Soviet Russia American Ambassador Bullitt has ordered bats and balls from this country, and two Embassy mines are ready to show Moscow how the game should be played.

Even the deliberate East has learned to steal bases. Girls' schools in China and Turkey have their teams. One writer describes a game he watched beside the Bosphorus—"Fatima at the Bat" on the diamond of Constantinople Women's College.

It is in Japan, however, that baseball has had its most amazing success. It was introduced by two American professors some sixty years ago. At first there was little interest in it. No admission could be charged and spectators had to be given free tea and cakes to keep them from leaving during the seventh inning.

For Suicide

The San Diego Union

In the course of its current tilt with radio's general staff, the New York Herald-Tribune quotes a comment which offers a sure device for commercial broadcasting's suicide, if it is religiously followed.

"As a matter of fact" the NBC's legal department advised, according to the newspaper, "almost any discussion (of the Tugwell bill) at this time is dangerous." Accordingly the broadcasters refused to permit manufacturers of a patented toothpaste preparation to attack the pure food and drug bill and prevented Consumers Research, the consumers' self defense organization, from advocating federal interference with the nostrum business on the ground that the material sounded like "hopping on the NRA."

A side from the fact that the NRA or any other organization should be "hopped on" if any responsible group of citizens discovers ground for just criticism, the broadcasting company's lawyers here advise their client to destroy the public confidence which is the source of all its income.

The "do nothing, say nothing, be nothing" formula applies with double force to an enterprise devoted to arousing and holding public attention.

The Herald-Tribune holds that the threat of cancelling licenses has destroyed radio's independence. Whether this or a mistaken effort to please everyone produces the self-censorship, the result will be the radio, or for that matter, the newspapers, only can continue to exist and develop by serving the public interest particularly on controversial issues.

ADVENTURE PLUS SAFETY

They've caught the robin's lifting song
And one can listen all day long
The while it sings
Or flaps its wings
Before a gramophone.
But never would my heart be stirred
Unless I really heard the bird
Perform at ease
Among the trees,
Unaided and alone.

They've canned the growls of polar bears
Among their far Alaskan lairs
Where they reside
Beside the tide,
But I do not aspire
To hear their voices close at hand—
I'm not a coward, understand—
But brutes so queer
Across a long, long wire.

By wireless man shall shortly see
This wide world—practically free
Great snakes, great brutes,
Ply their pursuits,

And these would much divert me.

But being much averse to strife
And anxious to retain my life,

As wise men do,
I'm going to view
Such beasts as cannot hurt me.
